BUSINESS MEN STANDING PAT

"SAMPLE" INSTALLED

C, D & M Attempts To Show Advantage of Straight Over Bracket Style

Controversy between city council and the C. D. & M. Electric Co. over a satisfactory type of pole on which proposed White Way lights on Main st. are to be mounted seemed no nearer settlement today than several weeks ago when the company refused to sign a tentative contract specifying bracket mountings for the Main st. lights.

Through the efforts of the request of the Main and Center Street association city council specified bracket mountings in their tentative contract. Business men have continued to stand pat on their decision in favor of the bracket lights in spite of the fact the company has repeatedly refused to install them.

May Ask Higher Rates

It is thought that additional rates will be asked by the company if they are obliged to install bracket lights on Main st. Company officials claim this type is not as modern and practical as the straight pole light and claim they are taking a risk in installing the bracket light.

The straight pole light was again disapproved by business men today following the installation of a sample of the straight pole mounting on the east side of South Main st. Saturday. The company install the sample pole in an endeavor to show the advantages of this type of mounting.

'Too Near Building

That light might be alright if the sidewalk on Main st. was twice as wide and there was a strip of lawn between the walk and the curb," Ira Lane, representing the Main & Center Street association said this morning. He said the light appeared to crowd close to the buildings on the narrow walk and pointed out the advantage of the bracket light which would extend two feet from the curb towards the center of the street.

Silent in the controversy thus far, city officials expressed their disapproval of the straight pole light this morning. Chief of Police J. W. Thompson said the bracket light appeared to be more practical than the straight pole light, as the rays were cast on the streets better instead of against business buildings.

FORECAST NEW TRADE RECORD

U. S. Exports and Imports Expected To Reach High Spot This Year

PROBABLY TEN BILLION

Would Establish Peak for Normal Years, Foreign Sales Large

WASHINGTON, July 16 — Six months figures of America's foreign trade issued by the department of commerce led officials today to predict that that sales and purchases abroad would amount to possibly $10,000,000,000 a record for normal years.

From the record piled up in the first half of the year exports were expected to exceed $5,520,000,000 and imports $4,400,000,000. Exports for the year probably will exceed those of 1928 by more than $400,000,000 while imports will be $300,000,000 greater, judging from figures already compiled.

Tariff Creates Uncertainty

Some uncertainty existed however because of the possibility of higher tariff rates. This would operate in two ways for a possible decrease of imports and exports first through curtailment of American purchases abroad and secondly by retaliatory measures by foreign governments and buyers that would decrease American sales in other markets.

Officials felt that so far this year business prosperity has much to owe to the unusual market found for American products abroad. Mass production of the highly manufactured group has permitted sufficiently low prices considering American qualities to meet the competition of the cheaper foreign made goods.

PLAN TO OPEN DISTILLERIES

Nation's Whisky Supply Getting Alarmingly Low, Is Report

SURVEY CONDUCTED

Propose To Start Up Six Prewar Plants To Replenish Stock

WASHINGTON, July 16 — The nation's whisky supply is getting so alarmingly low that the government is about to authorize six prewar distilleries to reopen to manufacture it legally—for medicinal purposes.

Formal announcement of the names of the distilleries is expected to be made within the next few weeks. Commissioner Doran of the prohibition unit is now conducting a survey of the medicinal liquor on hand. On its completion he will issue the permits for the distilleries to reopen permanently. It is understood they will be allowed to distill a total of approximately 2,000,000 gallons annually.

Will Be Amounts

Determination of what each distillery will contribute to the total will follow the announcement concerning the present stock.

Government expert estimate roughly that there are about 8,000,000 gallons of medicinal spirits on hand now sufficient for five years normal consumption on the basis of about 1,500,000 consumed annually under physicians prescriptions.

The present estimate is based on 30,000,000 gallons on hand June 6 1928 but recently there have been reports of leakages and evaporations which have caused prohibition officials to wonder if the supply were not getting alarmingly low.

Liquor to be fit for medicinal use according to the best authorities must be four years old just as that was the minimum age during the pre prohibition days for social consumption.

Under the treasury's present plan six of the most prominent distilleries of the old days will be chosen and will operate under federal supervision.

STATES URGED TO AID DRY LAW ENFORCEMENT

Increased Cooperation with Federal Officials Suggested to Governors

WICKERSHAM MESSAGE

Hoover Commission Head Proposes Effective Division of War on Rum

BY JAMES L. KILGALLEN

GLOTON, Conn., July 16—George W. Wickersham former United States attorney general and now chairman of President Hoover's commission to investigate crime and law enforcement, in a letter read before the twenty-first conference of governors here today, advanced the suggestion that states of the Union might better cooperate with the national government in enforcing prohibition one of the major factors in crime. The letter was read by Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York.

Suggests Sharing Up

Wickersham declared that at present the federal government is "carrying the brunt of enforcing prohibition." He suggested the job might be split up the states taking over the handling of police regulations dealing with speakeasies, bootleggers and the like and the national government attending to the bigger proposition of preventing importation and manufacture of liquor.

The letter the first expression of Wickersham's views on the relation of prohibition to crime since he was appointed chairman of President Hoover's commission is significant.

Demonstration Staged in Front of Legation

GRETNA, Conn., July 16—Calm in the United States was the dominant theme discussed by governors from all parts of the nation attending the twenty-first conference of governors which opened in three day session at the Hotel Griswold here today.

The chief cause of crime in the country is the indination on the part of many people to live beyond their means, Governor John Hammill of Iowa told International News Service in an interview this morning, as the conference was called to order.

They are consumed by a mad desire for pleasures and luxuries and are lacking in the fundamental industry and ability to acquire them. They want these luxuries at any cost. Prohibition is a contributing factor but not the controlling cause of crime in the opinion of Governor Hammill.

Governor John H. Trumbull, of Connecticut, formally welcomed the governors at the opening session this morning.

Local Minister Uses Magic As Evangelistic Sermon Feature

Rev. J. E. Campbell Has Studied Black Art Seven Years

MARION has a magic preacher, one of the few in the United States today.

For the past six or seven years the Rev. James E. Campbell of 201 Superior st. has used magic in his evangelistic sermons not only as an entertaining feature but as a strong factor in bringing out the object of his sermons.

Any magician will tell you and I have found it out myself, that it is much more difficult to give a performance of magic before children than it is before adult the Rev. Mr. Campbell said Monday.

Children Watch Tricks

The reason for this he went on is that children watch every move of the man before them paying no attention to the patter but that conceals the trick. Grown-ups listen to the line and miss the moves of the hand and body. Children have no reason in a land of make believe too and that helps them in catching on to the trick behind the magic skill.

The Rev. Mr. Campbell has a

22 CARS DERAILED ON HOCKING VALLEY

Traffic Rerouted Through Here as Result of Wreck Near Columbus

Northbound passenger traffic over the Hocking Valley railway was being rerouted through Delaware to Marion over the Pennsylvania railroad today as a result of an accident this morning when a southbound Hocking Valley freight train plunged through an open switch near Columbus derailing 22 cars and destroying 11 of them.

Local officials say that exceptional speed time was being made over the temporary route on the morning passenger train into Marion was only eight minutes late. It is due in here at 9:34 and arrived at 9:42. The mail train was also a little late but the lost time was made up between this city and Toledo.

Cars were telescoped and piled four high when the train running at a speed of between 35 and 40 miles an hour struck the switch which was believed to have been drawn open by a car hanging from a coupling.

More than 100 feet of track was torn up.

No injuries were reported though railroad officials at Marion had reported to local officials that several bohoes were riding the bars.

The train with 90 cars was in charge of Engineer F. W. Pickett and Conductor Jasper Clark, both of Columbus.

TITLE AT STAKE

"Betsy Ann" To Try for Recovery of Trophy Lost Last Year

CINCINNATI, July 16—A thin white ribbon will be stretched across the Ohio river at New Richmond O. tonight.

MANSFIELD, July 16—C. Donald Sites, inmate of the Mansfield state reformatory here, will not be released to Kenton authorities, even though he has "confessed" to the killing of Lewis Benjamin, Hardin county youth.

O. P. Garver, assistant superintendent at the institution, declared he would not release Sites until the youth had been indicted on a charge, and even then, he said, the release would have to come through the state board of paroles.

Prison officials, however, will allow Hardin county police to question Sites at the institution here.

CHICAGO, July 16—Bigger and better criminal figures at last have gained recognition.

The Illinois crime survey has announced the release of a book known as Who's Who in Crime which lists the "400" of the city's so-call underworld.

The release was announced at the eighth annual meeting of the Institute of social research at the University of Chicago. John Landesco, who has been conducting the crime survey in cooperation with the University of Chicago made the announcement.

Among those who have gained distinction as the city's most notorious figures in organized crime are Al Capone, Harry Guzik, Hinkie Miller, Joe Saltis, Julius "Potatoes" Kaufman, Vincent McErlane, William (Klondike) O'Donnell, Jack McGurn and Frankie Foyle.

Now is it an easy proposition to make this "Who's Who". Those so honored were chosen only after 7,000 candidates were considered both through their records at the police bureau of identification and on general reputation.

Today's Review of Yesterday's Grain

CHICAGO, July 16—The broadest wheat market in year advanced prices around 8@9c yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade. Active buying of wheat futures by locals and commission houses persisted from the opening to the closing gong and prices finished at the highs made within a few moments of the close. Continued dry weather in the northwest and the response of foreign markets to the bullish news in North America were behind the buying.

Corn shorts became nervous as prices advanced with wheat and started to cover. Other locals continued to sell but the market finished with substantial gains. Oats also participated in the general bullishness, and rye gains were even larger than those in wheat.

Contributing Causes

Adverse weather conditions, hot and dry northwest and rainy southwest continued over the week-end and caused a sharply higher opening, 2@3c up, which was aided by strength at Liverpool indicating foreign disposition to accept bullish reports of North American conditions. Locals took profits on the opening bulge, anticipating a reaction, but they failed to take into account the public participation. The latter, broadcasts in years, pit observers said, took all the wheat offered and locals were forced to pay higher prices to reinstate.

Only one fact in the news was consequential. It was that Canada, where the crop is generally estimated nearly 200,000,000 less than a year ago, was still without rains and the crop was continuing to deteriorate. Reports were very pessimistic, but individual items received little attention. Southwest advices also continued bullish and more complaints were heard from the soft Winter territory.

Corn More Active

Corn trade was more active than for the past few days and a larger outside participation was noted. This and the sustained bullish tendency of wheat led to short covering and prices rose steadily, passing the cost of the privileges. Weather conditions were mainly favorable for the crop, but observers still report spotted conditions with many sections complaining of excess moisture.

Cash corn continued in demand with offerings moderate until the advance when 261,000 bushels were booked. Late in the session cash prices failed to fully follow the futures. Vessel room was chartered for the shipment of 450,000 bushels of corn to Buffalo.

Changes in the United States visible supply were: Wheat increased 6,145,000 bushels; corn increased 394,000 bushels; oats decreased 368,000 bushels; rye decreased 10,000 bushels and barley increased 119,000 bushels.

Groceries, Produce, Meats, Grain, Livestock

Marion is experiencing a shortage of oranges which is liable to continue for six weeks or more, grocers said this morning. California varieties are virtually the only oranges now available here, these selling at high prices.

Florida oranges are nearly extinct here for the present. They will be available in about six weeks, however, when the new crop is shipped. There are but few Florida oranges quoted here now.

California oranges may be bought at prices ranging from 50 to 75 cents, according to size and quality. Prices are expected to decline when the new crop arrives here early in September.

There were a few broiler onions, small ones, available this morning at 10 cents a pound.

Two varieties of apples were offered here this morning following the arrival of some Red Astricans, at two pounds for 25 cents. The other variety is the Yellow Transparent at a similar price.

Rosalie's car was not made for cross country, so she left it on the road, and having successfully negotiated a barbed wire fence and a couple of fields, she takes a well earned rest. The hat she is wearing is of calico print, though it can be had in gingham faced with a plain color, and the brim is square—or rather it is bowed up at the sides to appear square. Another new hat which is being shown is one of flowered crochet lace, with the brim turned up in front like a sou'wester.

COUNTY AUTHORITIES WAR ON GAMBLING

Wage Campaign Against Night Club Located Near Geneva

ASHTABULA, O., July 16—"We'll raid the place every night all summer, if necessary. We'll rid Ashtabula county of this resort if it takes the whole law enforcement machinery of the county to do it."

This was the answer of Sheriff Frank S. Sheldon and Prosecutor Howard M. Nazor to statements that gambling on a large scale is being conducted in connection with a so called exclusive night club near Geneva.

Two raids made on the place last week were fruitless, Sheldon said. All alleged gambling paraphernalia had been disposed of and the officers found nothing improper.

"I have positive knowledge that gambling is going on at the resort and my office and the sheriff's office will clean it up if it takes all summer," said Prosecutor Nazor. "This sort of clubs have no place in Ashtabula county. The sooner they find it out the better for all concerned."

Charming Elephant Trainer One of Circus Attractions

PEGGY STEVENS, ELEPHANT TRAINER

SELLS FLOTO CIRCUS will come to Marion Friday, July 19 with an entirely new program headed by several feature acts that have been imported for their first tour of America. For a number of years past traveling circuses have been satisfied to continue a more or less routine program. Manager Terrell of the Sells Floto circus decided this season that something of a new and startling nature was necessary to keep Sells Floto right up to its slogan of "America's Greatest Show." With this in view and at tremendous expense Sells Floto brought one of the greatest of all circus attractions into the fold. Tom Mix and his famous horse Tony will be here with Sells Floto at every performance together with the Mix ranch cowboys and cowgirls. So tremendous has been the demand for seats to see Sells Floto and Tom Mix that the management has already increased the seating capacity to 10,000 seats. The program also includes the Cliff Aces including a performer known as the "human cannonball." A man is hurled into space from the mouth of a 4,700 pound naval cannon, leaving the gun at terrific speed.

Other acts include Allen Wing and Tuck Lacot both exceptional trainers of wild beasts, Terrell's Liberty Horses, three herds of elephants trained by Irene Ledgett, Betty Marshall and Peggy Stevens, three flying acts by the Clarkonians, the "three thrillers" and the James Arbaugh troupe "Peelles Hanaford and the Ella Hanaford" 60 clowns headed by Art Borelli and Jimmy Davidson, a 50 man menagerie of wild beasts and a sideshow of freaks.

POINCARE WINDS UP RATIFICATION PLEA

Urges Deputies To Approve Debt Agreement Pleasing to U. S.

PARIS, July 16—Premier Raymond Poincare today ended his impassioned plea to the chamber of deputies for ratification of the Mellon Berenger (France-American) war debt agreement without any reservations that would be offensive to the United States.

General debate upon the ratification bill began later.

Although the foreign affairs committee and the finance committee voted to incorporate into the Franco-American war debt accord reservations making payments contingent upon Germany receipts of reparation payments from Germany, supporters of the premier forecast that he would win a victory in the chamber with a small majority.

The premier terminated his ratification plea at 11:30 o'clock after speaking for 12 hours during four sittings of the chamber.

President Hoover, in one of his speeches plainly indicated that since the American people contributed to the French loans we should consider the debt sacred," declared Premier Poincare.

Marion Speaker To Be in Charge of Service

BUCYRUS, July 16—Miss Velma Schueller, assistant pastor of Calvary Evangelical church will be in charge of the services next Sunday morning following the Sunday school hour at the Salem Evangelical church here. The pastor, Rev. James I. Campbell, of Salem will be engaged in a series of revival meetings in Galion.

"KONJOLA VERY MEDICINE THAT MY CASE NEEDED"

Feeling Fine After Two Weeks Treatment, and Getting Better Every Day

MRS. IRENE SLAVIN

"I had indigestion, and I often wondered if anyone ever had it as badly as I," said Mrs. Irene Slavin, Stop 14 A, Mayfield Hgts., Cleveland, Ohio. "I dreaded meal time to come. I ate just enough to keep me alive. Even then I had to endure gas, bloating and pains. I was extremely nervous and dissatisfied with everything and everybody.

"After the second bottle of Konjola I was overcome with joy to know that at last I was free of all health troubles. This treatment of two weeks put an end to indigestion, the nervousness and all body pains. Konjola proved to be the very medicine that my case needed, and now I have splendid health."

Konjola is sold in Marion at Stump & Sam drug store and by all the best druggists throughout this entire section.—Adv.

MINISTER HERE HAS PROGRAM OF MAGIC

his magic illusions before his regular congregation, either in his pastorate at Salem Evangelical church, 10 miles east of the city, or in his evangelist tours, which will number six before the summer is over.

When preaching an evangelistic sermon to children, though, his art of make-believe comes in opportunely in teaching object lessons. One of his tricks is with handcuffs. Each link in the cuffs represents a sin, and finally there are enough of these sins to handcuff the person. A boy from the congregation is asked to fasten the handcuffs on the Rev. Mr. Campbell's hands, and then with a trick lock, he releases himself. The lesson in this trick is that even though people are chained in sin, Christ can release them through his power.

A favorite with the children is a funnel trick. A boy is invited to drink water and seemingly drinks too much. It is necessary to use his arm as a pump handle. A funnel is held to his nose and through a trick spring in the funnel, an enormous quantity of water runs from the boy's nose.

Taught by Minister

The Rev. Mr. Campbell first became interested in magic while in charge of the singing with Dr. L. J. Mitchell, evangelist. The evangelist carried a trunkful of magic material, and this attracted the singer to the art. Practice and no small amount of study finally made him proficient in the art of illusion until he has reached his present degree of proficiency.

When Leland O. Fisher was at Salem Evangelical church several weeks ago, Marion's magician-preacher inquired as to his success with magic. The Rev. Mr. Campbell first interested Mr. Fisher in magic about six months ago, and since that time the younger evangelistic singer has made rapid progress.

The Rev. Mr. Campbell can swallow knives as realistically as if knives were his favorite fruit. Empty compartments and cylindrical tubes give up yards of materials under his magic hand. He can put thimbles on his fingers and appear to make them jump from one hand to the other.

Children Entertained

The children of the story hour at Calvary Evangelical church enjoyed an exhibition of his skill last Tuesday morning, and were enthralled by the manner in which he could make marbles appear and disappear, and at one time he apparently drew a red silk handkerchief from behind the ear of one little boy.

When he goes on his evangelistic tours he is accompanied by Mrs. Campbell, who plays the piano and sings and by their six year old daughter, Caroline, who is the inspiration for their meetings.

STATES URGED TO AID WAR ON RUM

Governor Roosevelt told assembled governors.

The three-day conference of the governors was formally called to order this morning with Governor John Trumbull of Connecticut delivering the address of welcome. Governor George H. Dern, of Utah, presided. Twenty governors from all parts of the country were present.

Speaks on Crime

Governor Dern, Utah, addressed the conference on crime.

"There probably is more drivel being written about crime today than about any other subject," he said. "The burden of the song is that more severe punishment will put an end to crime.

"The nonsense of that argument is apparent when we discover that only one out of 30 persons who commit crime is convicted and usually that one belongs to the feeble-minded and so-called 'cheap crooks.' The big crooks get away and are not affected by the harsh treatment meted out to those who are caught.

"The way to decrease crime is to make certain that the perpetrators will be caught and punished."

Governor Roosevelt followed Governor Dern to the speaker's stand.

"We are now faced with new and alarming problems in criminal activities," said Governor Roosevelt.

Pictures Aroused Public

"I am certain the public is aroused to the necessity of suppressing the outrageous and open lawlessness evident by the murders committed daily in the public streets of our great cities, or private feuds between gunmen which flourish with less punishment than the darkest hours of Sicily."

Roosevelt declared there is no system for the collection of crime statistics in the United States. He said this a very vital matter if crime is to be combatted in a scientific and businesslike manner. He declared the country has no definite way of knowing whether or not there is a "crime wave."

Roosevelt urged the conference of governors to establish a permanent committee on coordination in the enforcing of justice and the reform of criminal procedure which would consider the various suggestions made by state and national crime commissions, by various bodies devoted to penal reform and by the bar associations throughout the country.

PROPOSES SUPPORT OF HOOVER PLAN

GROTON, Conn., July 16—Governor Charles Richards of South Carolina today sought to have the conference of governors go on record as supporting President Hoover "in his program for law enforcement." It was pointed out by the chair, however, it would be contrary to the usual custom of the governors to vote on the subject and the resolution was therefore referred to the executive committee.

11 CHANGES MADE IN VOTING PLACES HERE

10 Precincts Moved to Marion School Buildings by Election Board changed to the Forest Lawn school from Wise's grocery at 879 East Center st.

May Use Library Building

Election board officials propose a change in the voting place of precinct B of the fifth ward from the Y. M. C. A. to the Public Library building. This change, however, cannot be made until permission is granted from the library directors for the use of the building as a voting place. The question will be considered at the next meeting of the library directors.

All voting places in the city will be open for registration on Aug. 10. The hours will be from 8 a. m. until 2 p. m. and from 4 p. m. until 9 p. m. Aug. 10 will be the only day on which Marion voters will be able to register at the voting places. From today until noon Aug. 9, however, voters may register at election board headquarters on East Center st. Only those who will become 21 years of age before Nov. 5, election day, and those who have moved from one precinct to another since last registering, need to register before the primaries Aug. 13.

Absent voters ballots may be cast at election board headquarters any time up to Aug. 10, officials of the board stated today. Yesterday was the first day for casting absent voters ballots. None had been received by the board today.

EXPECT LONG FIGHT OVER MURDER CASE

Legal Battle To Save Snook Likely To Run Over Six Weeks

co-ed after smashing her skull with 17 blows from a hammer.

Trial Delay Likely

With the request for the sanity hearing, not only comes the possibility of two hearings before the man stands trial, but also the actuality that the first-degree murder trial cannot get under way next Monday morning, as scheduled.

Besides serving formal notice, the defense lawyers may also file the actual petition itself.

The law will take its first step when Judge Scarlett appoints from one to three alienists to pass on the mental condition of the deposed university instructor, who, at one time, was the best rapid-fire pistol shot in the world.

A jury, called a petit one in legal phraseology, will then be impaneled and the alienists will make their report to this deliberating body.

Line of Procedure

Should the petit jury find that Dr. Snook was insane when he brutally slew Miss Hix on the night of June 13, the man would next be allowed a hearing in probate court.

If the second hearing developed that he is sane now, more than a month after the crime, he would be allowed to walk from the Franklin county jail, where he is being held without bond, a free man.

If however, the second hearing resulted in the declaration that Dr. Snook is still insane, the confessed killer would be committed to the Lima state hospital for the criminally insane.

Should the petit jury find him sane, defense attorneys would have the right to ask for another hearing to determine whether he is sane now.

If the latter hearing should find that he is insane now, he would be sent to Lima, but if he should be found to be sane both at the time of the killing and now, he would be forced to stand trial on first-degree murder charges.

Available for Defense

Even in face of the previous "sane" findings, an insanity plea would be allowed at the trial.

Then there would be the possibility of the jury at the actual murder trial returning a verdict of "not guilty on the sole grounds of insanity." Similar cases, such as the famous George Remus sensation, have been written into the criminal annals of the Buckeye state.

The legal procedure described in the foregoing is known as Ohio's new insanity law, which was explained to International News Service by County Prosecutor John J. Chester, Jr., and the defense attorneys, who are E. O. Ricketts, John F. Seidel, both of Columbus, and C. M. Sybert, Circleville.

TROOP MOBILIZATION REPORTED IN EAST

Warlike Preparations Made by Both Russia and China

building was bombarded with rotten cucumbers by a noisy, cat-calling crowd.

Renews Request

The soviet government has renewed its request that the Chinese charge Serebriakov, a member of the government commissariat for transport, so he can proceed to Harbin, Manchuria, to attempt to negotiate a settlement.

The soviets requested permission to send Serebriakov into Manchuria on Friday, but up to noon today no reply had been received from the Nanking government.

Tension is growing over the break between Soviet Russia and China.

Workers' organizations are adopting resolutions calling upon the Chinese communists to take action against the Nanking government's representatives in Machuria and the Manchurian militarist leaders.

Processions are being held here almost daily, the marchers carrying banners with such inscriptions as "hands off soviet Russia" and "We don't want war, but we are ready to fight."

Leaders of communist parties in other countries have notified the headquarters of international that are preparing to hold demonstrations in favor of soviet Russia.

PROBLEMS ON FARM DISCUSSED AT MEET

Gay Commends Appointment of Farm Commission by Hoover

A discussion of problems confronting the modern farmer was heard at the weekly luncheon of the Marion Rotary club in Hotel Harding this noon. The speaker was C. W. Gay, head of the Ohio State university, department of animal husbandry.

The probable effect of legislation on farm relief, and the general situation were discussed in detail by Mr. Gay. He commended the appointment of the farm commission by President Hoover, saying he was satisfied that the commission was very capable.

Present tax rates were pointed to by the speaker as a great handicap to the farmer of today. He also commented on the lack of cooperation on the part of railroads in handling shipments of farm produce.

Tolerance is no virtue in an officer who has laws to enforce.

Daily Proverb—"She that loseth her modesty and honesty hath nothing else worth losing."

Fifteen Ohioans drowned or killed in traffic accidents over the week-end! It's an awful price we pay for our enjoyments?

Seven policemen and a former police desk sergeant are under arrest in Kansas City, three charged with burglary and grand larceny and six with thefts. And the flood of crime goes on.

"Tariff Critics See Shoe Price Boost," reads a headline. Why so? Shoes went up in price when leather came down. Why shouldn't the price of them fall, to be consistent, when the cost of leather is increased?

The school board officials up there have borrowed $109,676,000 from the banks of Chicago to carry on the work of the schools. Isn't it just possible that the cost of maintaining the common schools of the land is growing a bit more than the cause of education demands?

"Two Women Arrested in Rum Raids Here," read a headline in Monday's Star. Let's be hopeful. One of these days some of the fellows whose defiance of the law has been consistent and of long duration may be apprehended.

The solid content of malt extract has been ordered increased by Dr. Doran from twelve per cent., as at present, to eighteen per cent. with an alcoholic content of not over two per cent. It's probably only a question of time till those who drink malt tonic may get it in tablets.

One man was burned to death and two were badly injured when their plane crashed in a back yard of a home in Birmingham, Alabama. Cheerful outlook ahead for us, considering the marked activity in airplane production!

Sixty-eight men armed with sawed-off shotguns appeared before the circuit court in Fond du Lac, Wisconsin, a few days ago, and were sworn in as vigilantes. Sooner or later, all the land is liable to come to it if crime is to be put down.

Scientists have discovered a new variety of mosquito at Bozeman, Montana, and a Washington dispatch speaks of it as "an unexpected and noteworthy event," which will give the average man another idea regarding what may constitute a noteworthy event.

Hubert T. Parson, once a bookkeeper, but now the president of the F. W. Woolworth company, is building a $1,200,000 house on the fashionable Avenue Foch, formerly the Avenue du Bois de Boulogne, over in Paris. Get the nickels and dimes and the dollars will look after themselves?

New York Would Beautify.

New York City is going in for beautification. If we correctly get the idea of the commissioner of public works of Manhattan, the first step will be the removal of some of the cities monstrosities in marble, stone, brick and wood. To accomplish this, the city is planning a civic center, the plan being to so locate it as to make the removal of some of the city's most notable eyesores, among them being the atrocious outrage against all taste, commonly known as the approach to the Brooklyn bridge; the old federal building, described as the ugliest building in all the world; the "Boss Tweed" courthouse, famed for costing a quarter of a million dollars in building construction and eight millions in graft, and MacMonnies' "Civic Virtue," which the commissioner refers to as "the fat boy standing in a mass of worms."

Getting rid of "Civic Virtue" is considered the hard problem in the plans for the reason that it belongs to the Angela Crano memorial foundation and was erected by the city with a fund left by Angela Crano for the purpose.

The statue has had a venturous career. Sculptored by MacMonnies in Normandy, it was buried under a barn when the war broke out. Later it was taken to Paris and again buried to preserve it from the Germans. Ressurrected, it was taken to New York and unloaded upon that city, where it has long been the subject of suspicion that it was a satire, that it shows the artist's conception of civic virtue as it is rather than as it ought to be. The city has tried to unload it upon several outskirts, but they also are suspicious, and it still stands where placed under the administration of Mayor Hylan—a Titan in stone trampling a couple of naked fat women.

As an occasional visitor to New York, we wish Commissioner Johnson well and hope that he will be able to carry out his entire program, but if he is able to accomplish but one feature of it, let him work on the awful bridge approach. It's even worse than "Civic Virtue."

One Chance in Seven To Live.

Last week's two efforts in no way bettered the record of attempts to fly westward by plane across the North Atlantic. The Polish flier, Major Ludwick Idzikowski, was burned to death and his companion and fellow-countryman, Major Kasimir Kubala, was badly injured when their plane, the Marshal Pilsudski, crashed into the sea and exploded near a little island in the Azores group. The French fliers, Captain Dieudonne Costes and Maurice Bellonte, realizing that they were facing certain death by trying to fly their plane against the force of the winds they met, saved their lives by turning the Question Mark about and flying back to Paris.

Of the many attempts to make the westward flight in a heavier-than-air machine, but two have been successful, that of Lieutenants Lowell Smith and Erik Nelson, the American "round the world fliers," and that of the late Baron von Huenefeld, Captain Koehl and Colonel Fitzmaurice in the German plane, Bremen.

In attempts to make the flight Captain Nungesser and Major Coli, of France, lost their lives in May, 1927; Captain Hamilton, Colonel Minchin and Princess Lowenstein-Wertheim met their deaths in August of the same year; Captain Hinchcliffe and Elsie Mackay hopped off in March, 1928, and have never since been heard from, and now the life of Major Idzikowski has been lost and his companion is in a serious condition.

Captain Courtney, of England, made the attempt in September of 1927 and was rescued, and the four Spanish airmen, Major Ramon Franco, Captain Gullarza and Ruiz de Alda and Petro Madriaga, were picked up afloat near the Azores late last month.

The German pilots, Johann Restlez and Cornelius Edzard, in the Europa; and Pilots Friedrich Loose and Herman Koehl, in the Bremen, started across on August 11 and were forced back. Storms also forced back Colonel Fitzmaurice and Captain McIntosh in September, 1927; Lilli Dillonz, a Viennese actress, and two pilots in October of the same year; the German fliers, H. Merl, F. Rode and W. Busch, who got as far as the Azores, the following month in 1927, and Costes and Bellonte, the present month.

Thus the results of fourteen attempts to make the westward North Atlantic flight by plane may be summarized: Two planes carrying five men made the flight; four planes carrying seven men and two women were lost at sea with the resultant deaths of six men and two women and the injury of the seventh man; five men flying in two planes are rescued and six planes carrying thirteen men and one woman turn back.

Of the fourteen planes two make the crossing; giving a ratio of one success to six failures. Of the thirty-four persons who made the attempt, five succeeded, the ratio of successes to failures being practically one to six, the same. Thus on this showing, the chances of landing on this side in a westward transatlantic flight are but one in seven, and it is well to remember that the flight of the two American lieutenants was in hops and that the Bremen landed on the north coast of New Foundland and not at its destination, New York.

A successful non-stop westward flight from take-off to goal has yet to be made; there is but one chance in seven to escape death, and yet venturesome souls continue to risk their lives to fly from Europe to North America.

Thirty per cent of the girls attending the summer classes of the University of Illinois are going bare-legged and wearing sun tan dresses. Those are the days when Opportunity knocks steadily at the mosquito's door.

The attempt of the 'Unthi' Bowler to fly to Berlin was not precisely what one might term a rip-roaring success, but the self-proclaimed "World's Greatest Newspaper" certainly got a lot of free advertising out of the attempted stunt, and, after all, that was the probable purpose of it.

Adolphe Menjou has sailed for Paris to seek an engagement in the motion-picture industry over there, stating that he had been unable to arrange a satisfactory contract with any American producer. Who knows? It may be that American producers have come to a point where they refuse to give up in salaries more than ten or twelve times what "artists" are worth.

The splendid record of Brigadier General Smedley D. Butler has been recognized by President Hoover, who has made him a major general. Of course, the general fell down a bit in saying Philadelphia, but it was utterly unfair to expect a miracle from a mere mortal.

Dr. Charles St. John, of Mount Wilson, says the sun is slowing down. Whereas its equatorial speed was 2.28 kilometers a second in 1876 and 1.96 in 1915, it is now but 1.89 kilometers a second. As we have the assurance of the doctor's belief that it will pick up speed again and travel at its normal gate, we get the idea that it is merely suffering from "that tired feeling."

Jewelery valued at $40,000 disappeared from the room of a New Jersey couple stopping at an Asbury Park hotel while they were enjoying a short stroll, and the odd phase of the case is that thus far no paragrapher has hinted that it might have been carried off by mosquitos.

Suits asking damages aggregating $120,000 have been brought thus far against the county commissioners as the result of accidents near the Brownlee bridge on the Harding highway in which four lives were lost and much property damage done. It might be well were the commissioners to assure themselves that the approaches to the bridge in question are safely guarded. The rails placed following the deaths of the four young women are not wholly convincing.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

Recently I had the privilege of addressing a group of housewives. There were several thousand women in my audience and each one was vitally interested in improving her home.

The time and labor saving devices on display were of intense interest to me. To be sure, it is not within the means of every family to have all these things. I wish it were. But every woman can have her housework made lighter with just a bit of good management.

Electric washing machines, vacuum cleaners, dish washers, floor polishers, refrigerators, cake mixers, irons, mangles and all the other modern appliances lessen the labors of the overworked housekeeper. I would not have the entire housekeeping regime become a purely automatic performance. But I would have it made as light and easy as possible.

If you can not afford a large dish washer, there are many small, inexpensive ones which will lessen your labor. One device has a nozzle and extra attachment for cleaning the pots and pans.

There are food mixers which can be used for innumerable purposes. There are electric ice-cream freezers, as well as small washers, large enough to do the baby's clothes, and many other garments. These are ideal for the housewife who presides over a small apartment.

Floor polishers are made with mop and brush attachments so that their use is legion. In the country, where all the modern comforts are not obtainable, such a machine, if electricity is available, would save many a backache.

The average garbage can is a flytrap. No matter how clean you try to keep it, it is bound to have odors. Use heavy paper bags, either those waterproof ones which come for the express purpose, or, if this is not possible, save the heavy bags which come from the store. In this way you save yourself the labor of always cleaning the garbage pail, and, in addition, you have a sanitary container.

Sit down and decide today just which time-saving, labor saving device will help you most. Then consult with your family and let that be the next purchase for the home. It will repay the family many, many times because it will keep mother young and happy for many extra joyful years.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES

W. G. Q—How can I improve my circulation?

Editorial Opinion.

NO COMPROMISE WITH RUSSIA.

The Washington correspondent of the New York World, in a dispatch prominently displayed on the front page of that paper, says that President Hoover has indicated "to important industrial and banking interests" that this government "may reconsider the question of Russian recognition in the light of a rapidly-expanding trade with the soviet and the accordingly growing need of a diplomatic relationship."

If this implies consideration on any other terms than those laid down with impressive finality by Hughes and Coolidge we do not believe the statement is true. The doorway for Russian recognition has been wide open for several years under the conditions named, which are: 1—the recognition of Russia's debt to the United States for money loaned the Kerensky government; 2—compensation to Americans for property destroyed or confiscated by the soviet, and 3—termination of Communistic propaganda in the United States. No negotiations are needed. Russia has simply to accept the conditions and comply with them.

That being the case, any reconsideration, these conditions remaining unaccepted, must necessarily involve the modification or abandonment of the conditions. How can they be modified or abandoned? In each one of the conditions a fundamental principle of international good faith is at stake. It is not the amount of the debt or the amount of compensation that is at issue. America requires only that Russia formally recognize a national obligation which it has formally repudiated. Similarly the efforts of soviet agencies to undermine the system of government in this country is a gross breach of a vital principle of international relations.

There can be no compromising of these principles. They are incapable of compromise. Nor can America, either in honor or expediency, abandon them. But it is intimated in this dispatch that considerations of trade may induce President Hoover to reopen the question of recognition. That is to intimate that he would barter principles for gain. We do not believe him capable of that. We are confident that he fully indorses the principles and is of the same mind as President Coolidge was when he said: 'Our government does not propose to enter into relations with another regime which refuses to recognize the sanctity of international obligations. I do not propose to barter away for the privilege of trade any of the cherished rights of humanity. I do not propose to make merchandise of any American principle."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

AMERICAN PAPER MONEY ABROAD.

Uncle Sam is calling in all the old paper money. It will be a long time before some of it comes home, for it has gone on long journeys. American paper money is used widely in some of the countries of Europe, especially those having unstable or depreciated currencies. Some of it has been hoarded, not as silver is hoarded in India, but because any American dollar is regarded as equal to gold.

It is significant of conditions in Russia that large quantities of United States currency have been absorbed there. The department of commerce reports that in the last two calendar years, fifteen New York banks have shipped more than $11,000,000 in United States money to Russia. Very little has come back. Most of the shipments have been made by Russian immigrants in this country, it is believed, but the money is kept in Russia because of the currency situation there.

Since stabilization of the mark and of some other foreign currencies, considerable American money has been returned from countries where it had been in use, but others such as Russia are still absorbing it.

The economic effect of the retention of American money is that of a non-interest-bearing investment by foreigners in American values. Some of this investment, no doubt, is speculative; not speculative in American money, but in the fluctuating values of foreign money. In terms of the foreign circulating medium, the dollar goes up or down and is a convenient medium for gambling on the turn of exchange, stable though the dollar itself may be.

Ignaz Moscheles—Composer.

BY COZETTE DOUGLASS.

With his earliest inclinations toward a musical career fostered amid congenial and sympathetic surroundings, Ignaz Moscheles fulfilled in later life his father's ambition that one of his sons should "become a thoroughbred musician."

Ignaz Moscheles was born in Prague, on May 30, 1794. He studied at the Conservatorium under Dionys Weber and at the age of fourteen made his first public appearance playing a concerto of his own composition.

On the death of his parents Moscheles moved to Vienna, and by the advice of Beethoven and Haydn pursued his musical studies under Albrechtsberger and Salieri, at the same time entering on a successful career as teacher and virtuoso.

With such high regard and confidence did the great masters hold Moscheles that in 1814 Beethoven commissioned him to prepare the pianoforte arrangement of "Fidelio." The next year Moscheles published his celebrated "Variationen uber den Alexandermarsch," a concert piece of such difficulty that on his performance of it in public he was immediately hailed as the most brilliant performer of the day.

Shortly after this Moscheles entered upon a tour of the European capitals, a tour which was crowned with great success. In 1822 he made his first appearance in London and there met and became friendly with Muzio Clementi and John Cramer. For a concert given by Cramer, Moscheles wrote for him his famous "Hommage a Handel."

During a visit to Berlin, he met Mendelssohn, then a boy of fifteen, and a lasting friendship was formed between the two great men, which was broken only by Mendelssohn's early death.

In 1826 Moscheles settled permanently in London, after his marriage to Charlotte Embden in Hamburg. In 1829 he introduced Mendelssohn to London musical circles, and in 1832 he was appointed director of the Philharmonic society, and later conductor, which post he held until 1847. In that year he was persuaded by Mendelssohn to accept the position of assistant at the Conservatory in Leipzig, which Mendelssohn had founded. On the death of Mendelssohn, Moscheles succeeded him as director, which position he retained until his death.

Moscheles died in Leipsig on March 10, 1870.—Copyright Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Westward Bound.

BY O. O. McINTYRE.

Somewhere in New Mexico, July 16—The sage brush country was made romantic for me by Henry Rideout's stories of the crawling two-gun riders of the purple sage. Still I always find it depressing. Flat prairies covered and wither in the baking sun. Heat simmers in slightly nauseating waves.

Here and there empty wastelands are dotted with squat adobe houses and the occasional shanties so feebly blazing the Santa Fe trail to the Pacific. Yet it is the last stand of a picturesque and vanishing West. The calico pony makes way for the flivver. Even the poor Indian is in mail order trappings.

Sammy Goldwyn created a little more excitement among natives of Los Vegas in a whipcord tan touched up with an orchid cravat tie. Three saddled mounts bolted hell for breakfast down the street dragging the hitching rack.

The colorful Palm Beach toned pajamas, incidentally, are now a neat wrinkle in crossing the continent. Ladies and gentlemen debouch from compartments and drawing-rooms for platform promenades at the way stops. Dogs bark, children cling to mothers' skirts and everybody has a good snigger.

Crossing the Colorado "high country" last night I was entertained by a glib young man in the observation car who told me of a mountain lion he killed in the section. "Don't put it in the papers," he concluded. "But if you do here's my card so you'll get the name right."

On the train also is a lady who let her nails go in long highly-polished finger nails. My guess would be she is a potential cinema Circe rigged up to storm Hollywood. She is a brunet with heavily-kohled eyes and a complexion like clouded ivory. Her flaming red nails are at least a half inch long.

At Trinidad, Harry Richman popped out of his coach for a stroll in robin's egg blue pajamas. Edwin Carewe or his double also made his appearance in a kimona creation. A famous high-play dice gambler circulated about. Thus the mountain country had its dash of Broadway color for a fleeting instant.

The Way of the World.

BY GROVE PATTERSON.

There is a vast difference between knowledge and possession. There is much difference between knowing about something and being something. C. T. Henderson, southern educator, says: "We can not communicate what we do not know. It is well understood that one can not impart knowledge which one does not possess. It is less completely understood that neither can one communicate character or goodness or spirituality unless one has gained these great possessions for oneself."

The principle applies not only to personality and life in general, but to salesmanship in particular. You may know about the supposed excellencies of a product, but unless you actually possess the enthusiasm of belief in the product, unless you actually possess sincerity, you can not hope to be a great salesman.

It is said that 10,000,000 people own stock in the large corporations of the country. Counting all corporations, doubtless the number is much greater. Think what that means to the United States and its continuing experiment of democracy. What has become of the old division—the "House of Have" and the "House of Want?" The attitude of millions is changed, because they have a stake in their country. They are owners, operators, stockholders. They laugh at the soapbox pessimist to whom they once listened as for glad tidings.

Which of you by taking thought can add one cubit unto his stature? And why take ye thought for raiment? Two 3-Story Buildings Crash into Excavation

MONTGOMERY, Ala., July 16—Montgomery's main business block presented a yawning gap today as workmen continued to remove debris from the collapsed structures which yesterday housed two of the city's leading mercantile establishments.

All that remained of the shoe and department store that were destroyed when two three-story buildings tumbled into an adjoining excavation was a mass of wreckage. More than 50 employes and customers were congratulating themselves on their miraculous escape.

Property loss, including the store stocks was estimated at $200,000. The buildings started to crack a few minutes before they crumbled, thus warning those inside to flee. No one was hurt seriously.

When a man hides his light under a bushel, if somebody doesn't notice pretty soon he begins to pound on the bushel.

Fifteen Ohioans drowned or killed in traffic accidents over the week-end! It's an awful price we pay for our enjoyments?

Seven policemen and a former police desk sergeant are under arrest in Kansas City, three charged with burglary and grand larceny and six with thefts. And the flood of crime goes on.

"Tariff Critics See Shoe Price Boost," reads a headline. Why so? Shoes went up in price when leather came down. Why shouldn't the price of them fall, to be consistent, when the cost of leather is increased?

The school board officials up there have borrowed $100,675,000 from the banks of Chicago to carry on the work of the schools. Isn't it just possible that the cost of maintaining the common schools of the land is growing a bit more than the cause of education demands?

"Two Women Arrested in Rum Raids Here," read a headline in Monday's Star. Let's be hopeful. One of these days some of the fellows whose defiance of the law has been consistent and of long duration may be apprehended.

The solid content of malt extract has been ordered increased by Dr Doran from twelve per cent, as at present, to eighteen per cent, with an alcoholic content of not over two per cent. It's probably only a question of time till those who drink malt tonic may get it in tablets.

One man was burned to death and two were badly injured when their plane crashed in a back yard of a home in Birmingham, Alabama. Cheerful outlook ahead for us, considering the marked activity in airplane production!

Sixty-eight men armed with sawed-off shotguns appeared before the circuit court in Fond du Lac, Wisconsin, a few days ago, and were sworn in as vigilantes. Sooner or later, all the land is liable to come to it if crime is to be put down.

Scientists have discovered a new variety of mosquito at Bozoman, Montana, and a Washington dispatch speaks of it as "an unexpected and noteworthy event," which will give the average man another idea regarding what may constitute a noteworthy event.

Hubert T. Parson, once a bookkeeper, but now the president of the F. W. Woolworth company, is building a $1,200,000 house on the fashionable Avenue Foch, formerly the Avenue du Bois de Boulogne, over in Paris. Get the nickels and dimes and the dollars will look after themselves?

New York Would Beautify.

New York City is going in for beautification. If we correctly get the idea of the commissioner of public works of Manhattan, the first step will be the removal of some of the cities monstrosities in marble, stone, brick and wood. To accomplish this, the city is planning a civic center, the plan being to so locate it as to make the removal of some of the city's most notable eyesores, among them being the atrocious outrage against all taste, commonly known as the approach to the Brooklyn bridge; the old federal building, described as the ugliest building in all the world; the "Boss Tweed" courthouse, famed for costing a quarter of a million dollars in building construction and eight millions in graft, and MacMonnies' "Civic Virtue," which the commissioner refers to as "the fat boy standing in a mass of worms."

Getting rid of "Civic Virtue" is considered the hard problem in the plans for the reason that it belongs to the Angela Crane memorial foundation and was erected by the city with a fund left by Angela Crane for the purpose.

The statue has had a venturous career. Sculptored by MacMonnies in Normandy, it was buried under a barn when the war broke out. Later it was taken to Paris and again buried to preserve it from the Germans. Ressurrected, it was taken to New York and unloaded upon that city, where it has long been the subject of suspicion that it was a satire, that it shows the artist's conception of civic virtue as it is rather than as it ought to be. The city has tried to unload it upon several outskirts, but they also are suspicious, and it still stands where placed under the administration of Mayor Hylan—a Titan in stone trampling a couple of naked fat women.

As an occasional visitor to New York, we wish Commissioner Johnson well and hope that he will be able to carry out his entire program, but if he is able to accomplish but one feature of it, let him work on the awful bridge approach. It's even worse than "Civic Virtue."

One Chance in Seven To Live.

Last week's two efforts in no way bettered the record of attempts to fly westward by plane across the North Atlantic. The Polish flier, Major Ludwick Idzikowski, was burned to death and his companion and fellow-countryman, Major Kasimir Kubala, was badly injured when their plane, the Marshal Pilsudski, crashed into the sea and exploded near a little island in the Azores group. The French fliers, Captain Dieudonne Costes and Maurice Bellonte, realizing that they were facing certain death by trying to fly their plane against the force of the winds they met, saved their lives by turning the Question Mark about and flying back to Paris.

Of the many attempts to make the westward flight in a heavier-than-air machine, but two have been successful, that of Lieutenants Lowell Smith and Erik Nelson, the American "round the world fliers," and that of the late Baron von Huenefeld, Captain Koehl and Colonel Fitzmaurice in the German plane, Bremen.

In attempts to make the flight Captain Nungesser and Major Coli, of France, lost their lives in May, 1927; Captain Hamilton, Colonel Minchin and Princess Lowenstein-Wertheim met their deaths in August of the same year; Captain Hinchcliffe and Elsie Mackay hopped off in March, 1928, and have never since been heard from, and now the life of Major Idzikowski has been lost and his companion is in a serious condition.

Captain Courtney, of England, made the attempt in September of 1927 and was rescued, and the four Spanish airmen, Major Ramon Franco, Captain Gallarza and Ruiz de Alda and Petro Madriaga, were picked up afloat near the Azores late last month.

The German pilots, Johann Risticz and Cornelius Edzard, in the Europa, and Pilots Friedrich Klose and Herman Koehl, in the Bremen, started across on August 14 and were forced back. Storms also forced back Colonel Fitzmaurice and Captain McIntosh in September, 1927, Lilli Dillenz, a Viennese actress, and two pilots in October of the same year, the German fliers, H. Mert, F. Rode and W. Bosch, who got as far as the Azores, the following month in 1927, and Costes and Bellonte, the present month.

Thus the results of fourteen attempts to make the westward North Atlantic flight by plane may be summarized: Two planes carrying five men made the flight; four planes carrying seven men and two women were lost at sea with the resultant deaths of six men and two women and the injury of the seventh man; five men flying in two planes are rescued and six planes carrying thirteen men and one woman turn back.

Of the fourteen planes two make the crossing; giving a ratio of one success to six failures. Of the thirty-four persons who made the attempt, five succeeded, the ratio of successes to failures being practically one to six, the same. Thus on this showing, the chances of landing on this side in a westward transatlantic flight are but one in seven, and it is well to remember that the flight of the two American lieutenants was in hops and that the Bremen landed on the north coast of New Foundland and not at its destination, New York.

A successful non-stop westward flight from take-off to goal has yet to be made; there is but one chance in seven to escape death, and yet venturesome souls continue to risk their lives to fly from Europe to North America.

Thirty per cent. of the girls attending the summer classes of the University of Illinois are going bare-legged and wearing sun fan dresses. Those are the days when Opportunity knocks steadily at the mosquito's door.

The attempt of the 'Until' Bowler to fly to Berlin was not precisely what one might term a rip-roaring success, but the self-proclaimed "World's Greatest Newspaper" certainly got a lot of free advertising out of the attempted stunt, and, after all, that was the probable purpose of it.

Adolphe Menjou has sailed for Paris to seek an engagement in the motion-picture industry over there, stating that he had been unable to arrange a satisfactory contract with any American producer. Who knows? It may be that American producers have come to a point where they refuse to give up in salaries more than ten or twelve times what "artists" are worth.

The splendid record of Brigadier General Smedley D. Butler has been recognized by President Hoover, who has made him a major general. Of course, the general fell down a bit in saying Philadelphia, but it was utterly unfair to expect a miracle from a mere mortal.

Dr. Charles St John, of Mount Wilson, says the sun is slowing down. Whereas its equatorial speed was 2.28 kilometers a second in 1876 and 1.96 in 1915, it is now but 1.89 kilometers a second. As we have the assurance of the doctor's belief that it will pick up speed again and travel at its normal gate, we get the idea that it is merely suffering from "that tired feeling."

Jewelery valued at $40,000 disappeared from the room of a New Jersey couple stopping at an Asbury Park hotel while they were enjoying a short stroll, and the odd phase of the case is that thus far no paragrapher has hinted that it might have been carried off by mosquitos.

Suits asking damages aggregating $120,000 have been brought thus far against the county commissioners as the result of accidents near the Brownlee bridge on the Harding highway in which four lives were lost and much property damage done. It might be well were the commissioners to assure themselves that the approaches to the bridge in question are safely guarded. The rails placed following the deaths of the four young women are not wholly convincing.

Housekeeping Aids Health Assets.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

Recently I had the privilege of addressing a group of housewives. There were several thousand women in my audience and each one was vitally interested in improving her home.

The time and labor saving devices on display were of intense interest to me. To be sure, it is not within the means of every family to have all these things. I wish it were. But every woman can have her housework made lighter with just a bit of good management.

Electric washing machines, vacuum cleaners, dish washers, floor polishers, refrigerators, cake mixers, irons, manglers and all the other modern appliances lessen the labors of the overworked housekeeper. I would not have the entire housekeeping regime become a purely automatic performance. But I would have it made as light and easy as possible.

If you can not afford a large dish washer, there are many small, inexpensive ones which will lessen your labor. One device has a nozzle and extra attachment for cleaning the pots and pans.

There are food mixers which can be used for innumerable purposes. There are electric ice-cream freezers, as well as small washers, large enough to do the baby's clothes, and many other garments. These are ideal for the housewife who parades over a small apartment.

Floor polishers are made with mop and brush attachments so that their use is legion. In the country, where all the modern comforts are not obtainable, such a machine, if electricity is available, would save many a backache.

The average garbage can is a fly trap. No matter how clean you try to keep it, it is bound to have odors. Use heavy paper bags, either those waterproof ones which come for the express purpose, or, if this is not possible, save the heavy bags which come from the store. In this way you save yourself the labor of always cleaning the garbage pail, and, in addition, you have a sanitary container.

Sit down and decide today just which time-saving, labor-saving device will help you most. Then consult with your family and let that be the next purchase for the home. It will repay the family many, many times because it will keep mother young and happy for many extra joyful years.

Not Any More.

There were 58,887 arrests for traffic offenses in Washington last year, but American lawlessness doesn't impress people as serious if it is motorized.—Springfield Republican.

Editorial Opinion.

NO COMPROMISE WITH RUSSIA.

The Washington correspondent of the New York World, in a dispatch prominently displayed on the front page of that paper, says that President Hoover has indicated "to important industrial and banking interests" that this government "may reconsider the question of Russian recognition in the light of a rapidly-expanding trade with the soviet and the accordingly growing need of a diplomatic relationship."

If this implies consideration on any other terms than those laid down with impressive finality by Hughes and Coolidge we do not believe the statement is true. The doorway for Russian recognition has been wide open for several years under the conditions named, which are: 1—the recognition of Russia's debt to the United States for money loaned the Kerensky government; 2—compensation to Americans for properly destroyed or confiscated by the soviet, and 3—termination of Communistic propaganda in the United States. No negotiations are needed. Russia has simply to accept the conditions and comply with them.

That being the case, any reconsideration, these conditions remaining unaccepted, must necessarily involve the modification or abandonment of the conditions. How can they be modified or abandoned? In each one of the conditions a fundamental principle of international good faith is at stake. It is not the amount of the debt or the amount of compensation that is at issue. America requires only that Russia formally recognize a national obligation which it has formally repudiated. Similarly the efforts of soviet agencies to undermine the system of government in this country is a gross breach of a vital principle of international relations.

There can be no compromising of these principles. They are incapable of compromise. Nor can America, either in honor or expediency, abandon them. But it is intimated in this dispatch that considerations of trade may induce President Hoover to reopen the question of recognition. That is to intimate that he would barter principles for gain. We do not believe him capable of that. We are confident that he fully indorses the principles and is of the same mind as President Coolidge was when he said: "Our government does not propose to enter into relations with another regime which refuses to recognize the sanctity of international obligations. I do not propose to barter away for the privilege of trade any of the cherished rights of humanity. I do not propose to make merchandise of any American principle."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

AMERICAN PAPER MONEY ABROAD.

Uncle Sam is calling in all the old paper money. It will be a long time before some of it comes home, for it has gone on long journeys. American paper money is used widely in some of the countries of Europe, especially those having unstable or depreciated currencies. Some of it has been hoarded, not as silver is hoarded in India, but because any American dollar is regarded as equal to gold.

It is significant of conditions in Russia that large quantities of United States currency have been absorbed there. The department of commerce reports that in the last two calendar years, fifteen New York banks have shipped more than $11,000,000 in United States money to Russia. Very little has come back. Most of the shipments have been made by Russian immigrants in this country, it is believed, but the money is kept in Russia because of the currency situation there.

Since stabilization of the mark and of some other foreign currencies, considerable American money has been returned from countries where it had been in use, but others such as Russia are still absorbing it.

The economic effect of the retention of American money is that of a non-interest-bearing investment by foreigners in American values. Some of this investment, no doubt, is speculative; not speculative in American money, but in the fluctuating values of foreign money. In terms of the foreign circulating medium, the dollar goes up or down and is a convenient medium for gambling on the turn of exchange, stable though the dollar itself may be.

Ignaz Moscheles—Composer.

BY COZETTE DOUGLASS.

With his earliest inclinations toward a musical career fostered amid congenial and sympathetic surroundings, Ignaz Moscheles fulfilled in later life his father's ambition that one of his sons should "become a thoroughbred musician."

Ignaz Moscheles was born in Prague, on May 30, 1794. He studied at the Conservatorium under Dionys Weber and at the age of fourteen made his first public appearance playing a concerto of his own composition.

On the death of his parents Moscheles moved to Vienna, and by the advice of Beethoven and Haydn pursued his musical studies under Albrechtsberger and Salieri, at the same time entering on a successful career as teacher and virtuoso.

With such high regard and confidence did the great masters hold Moscheles that in 1814 Beethoven commissioned him to prepare the pianoforte arrangement of "Fidelio." The next year Moscheles published his celebrated "Variationen uber den Alexandermarsch," a concert piece of such difficulty that on his performance of it in public he was immediately hailed as the most brilliant performer of the day.

Shortly after this Moscheles entered upon a tour of the European capitals, a tour which was crowned with great success. In 1822 he made his first appearance in London and there met and became friendly with Muzio Clementi and John Cramer. For a concert given by Cramer, Moscheles wrote for him his famous "Hommage a Handel."

During a visit to Berlin, he met Mendelssohn, then a boy of fifteen, and a lasting friendship was formed between the two great men, which was broken only by Mendelssohn's early death.

In 1826 Moscheles settled permanently in London, after his marriage to Charlotte Embden in Hamburg. In 1829 he introduced Mendelssohn to London musical circles, and in 1832 he was appointed director of the Philharmonic society, and later conductor, which post he held until 1847. In that year he was persuaded by Mendelssohn to accept the position of assistant at the Conservatory in Leipzig, which Mendelssohn had founded. On the death of Mendelssohn, Moscheles succeeded him as director, which position he retained until his death.

Moscheles died in Leipsig on March 10, 1870.—Copyright Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Westward Bound.

BY O. O. McINTYRE.

Somewhere in New Mexico, July 16—The sage brush country was made romantic for me by Henry Rideout's stories of the drawling two-gun riders of the purple sage. But I always find it depressing. Flat prairies scorch and wither in the baking sun. Heat simmers in slightly nauseating waves.

Here and there empty wastelands are dotted with squat adobe houses and the tar red shanties so feebly blazing the Santa Fe trail to the Pacific. Yet it is the last stand of a picturesque and vanishing West. The calico pony makes way for the flivver. Lo, the poor Indian is in mail order trappings.

Sammy Goldwyn created a little more eye bulging among natives of Los Vegas in a whipcord tan touched up with an orchid pickle. Three saddled mounts hoited by for breakfast down the street dragging the hitching rack.

The colorful Palm Beach toned pajamas, incidentally, are now a neat wrinkle in crossing the continent. Ladies and gentlemen debouch from compartments and drawing-rooms for platform promenades at the way-stops. Dogs bark, children cling to mother's skirts and everybody has a good snigger.

Crossing the Colorado "high country" last night I was entertained by a glib young liar in the observation car who told me of a mountain lion he killed in the section. "Don't put it in the papers," he concluded. "But if you do here's my card so you'll get the name right."

On the train also is a lady who let herself go in long highly-polished finger nails. My guess would be she is a potential cinema Circe rigged up to storm Hollywood. She is a brunet with heavily-kohled eyes and a complexion like clouded ivory. Her flaming red nails are at least a half inch long.

At Trinidad, Harry Richman popped out of his coach for a stroll in robin's egg blue pajamas. Edwin Carewe or his double also made his appearance in a kimona creation. A famous high-play dice gambler circulated about. Thus the mountain country had its dash of Broadway color for a fleeting instant.

Gallup, New Mexico, is a high point along the trail. The air is thin and heady. The town was almost wiped out by a flu epidemic several years ago. Ladies pass through here sniffing at smelling salts, but in a few days one becomes acclimated—that is if one cares to remain that long. Put me down for about five minutes.

Far off across the pampas from time to time a handkerchief flutters in the doorway of a lonely hut where a pale victim guards Life's flickering lamp. This often is the sole contact of the "lunger," in exile, with civilization.

A heat-worn passenger gasped today that if it didn't turn cool by night b'gosh, he was going to open a screen window and jump out. He's either another Houdini, an incurable optimist or he never tried to open a train window.

Nowrere else has ice cream the rich and delicious flavor it has on coast trains. As an enthusiastic ice-creamist I've sampled the best in many parts of the world. Train ice-cream tops 'em all. It is the sort that, when you have eaten your fill, gives you a smacking desire to rub a couple of orders in your hair, if any.

The two most conspicuous books on the train are Ed Sullivan's "Rattling the Cup" and Tarkington's "Young Mrs. Greeley."

Albuquerque is the New York of New Mexico. The depot promenade reveals a cosmopolitan flurry of flappers, kodaking tourists, Indian squaws and papooses peddling primitive ceramics, boys with shellacked hair and little boy pants parading police dogs and a Russian duke type with a glistening black beard.

Nostalgia Note. An Albuquerque cop drew me up so short in trespassing a grassy plot with my dog with his "Hey, You!" that I could have broken down in a good cry with homesickness. It was just like being in Central park.

In crossing this state, you find yourself perpetually coated with a thin white desert sand. The spurs, boys! Here comes Old Alkali Mac. — Copyright, 1929, by the McNaught Syndicate, Inc.

The Way of the World.

BY GROVE PATTERSON.

There is a vast difference between knowledge and possession. There is much difference between knowing about something and being something. C. T. Henderson, southern educator, says: "We can not communicate what we do not know. It is well understood that one can not impart knowledge which one does not possess. It is less completely understood that neither can one communicate character or goodness or spirituality unless one has gained these great possessions for oneself."

The principle applies not only to personality and life in general, but to salesmanship in particular. You may know about the supposed excellencies of a product, but unless you actually possess the enthusiasm of belief in the product, unless you actually possess sincerity, you can not hope to be a great salesman.

"I must go down to the sea again, to the lonely sea and sky,
And all I ask is a tall ship, and a star to steer her by."

And so do we all steer our ships by the stars of other men. You who think yourself humble and obscure may not escape being the guide for some one, the pattern for a life, the star by which a ship is steered. It is an inescapable responsibility—one to make us thoughtful.

"How's business?" asks the friend.

"Good—for the little I got," is the reply.

In the answer is revealed the seed of ultimate large success. An acorn may be the source of vision.

It is said that 10,000,000 people own stock in the large corporations of the country. Counting all corporations, doubtless the number is much greater. Think what that means to the United States and its continuing experiment of democracy. What has become of the old division—the "House of Have" and the "House of Want?" The attitude of millions is changed, because they have a stake in their country. They are owners, operators, stockholders. They laugh at the soap-box pessimist to whom they once listened as for glad tidings.

Which of you by taking thought can add one cubit unto his stature? And why take ye thought for raiment? Consider the lilies of the field, how they grow; they toil not, neither do they spin: And yet I say unto you, that even Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these.—Matthew 6:27, 28, 29.

Prayer—"Behold now God, the Lord, He slumbereth ne'er who keepeth Israel in His holy care."

Arbor Vitae Club Surprises Couple

Members of the Arbor Vitae club and their families pleasantly surprised Mr. and Mrs. Earl Thomas, East Church st., last night honoring their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary. During the course of the evening a mock wedding was given by members of the club. All the costumes used for the characters were styles in fashion 25 years ago. Those taking part in the wedding were: Mr and Mrs. Earl Thomas, bride and groom; John Miller, minister; Mrs. A. G. Uncapher, pianist. Mr. and Mrs. George Deal, attendants; Little Miss Helen Uncapher, ring bearer, and Eleanor and Anna Mae Uncapher, flower girls. The bride carried a corsage of garden flowers and wore a veil presented to her by one of the club members. After the mock ceremony Mrs. S. P. Wollinger, past president of the club, presented the couple with a silver gift from the club members.

The refreshments committee, consisting of Mrs. Suro Martin, Mrs. E. M. Litchfield and Mrs. George Deal, served a luncheon at tables decorated in pink and white.

After the refreshments were served the guests presumably left for their own homes but returned later in the evening and surprised the couple with an old-fashioned belling.

A GREAT crowd enjoyed the sight of a small bull fighting for its life against a large African lion in the Juarez bull ring yesterday.

Large sums were bet. The lion, starved for a week, jumped on the back of the bull, tearing at its neck. The bull shook it off, stamped on it for five minutes. Then lion leaped back into the cage. The fight was over, everybody happy.

Before you condemn "Mexican cruelty" observe that the crowd consisted chiefly of Americans. And ask yourself whether a lion fighting a bull is worse than one man fighting another in our prize ring.

W. T. LOGAN, Christian missionary returning to Buffalo from the headwaters of the Zambesi, tells of a little bird that makes a hole in the river bank clay, fills it with fruit, lets it ferment and develop alcohol.

At the proper time the bird returns to its little clay vat, takes a drink, and will fight anything.

What could our prohibition forces do about that? Satan, of course, educated that bird, far back in the Garden of Eden, very likely.

COLD SOUP ON HOT DAY SUGGESTED

They Give Variety and Some of Them Are Quite Nourishing

If you think a bowl of milk and crackers is a good lunch on a hot day, try some of the cold soups for variety's sake. They are even more refreshing, and some of them are quite as nourishing if they contain milk or cream and egg.

Tomato, beet and sorrel are beautiful as cold soups. Sorrel, dock and sourgrass are the same kind of herb, except that sorrel has a slightly more sour flavor. Indeed, it is one of the two vegetables naturally sour in flavor. It is a very thin leaf which grows in clumps, wild, but comes to market tied in bunches or sold by the peck or pound. You can cook sorrel by itself, or use equal parts of sorrel, beet tops or radish tops, cooking all together and serving complete. The leaves should be eaten with the soup and not strained off. The stems of sorrel are not quite tender enough to eat. However, as they contain much of the delightful sour flavor they should be cooked with the leaves and then thrown away, as per directions.

Cold Sorrel Soup

One pound of sorrel, four cups of water, two cups of sour cream, one egg, one teaspoon of salt, one-eighth teaspoon of pepper.

Cut the stems of sorrel and tie them in a bunch. Throw stems and leaves in cold water for a few minutes and remove wilted or brown leaves. After washing thoroughly lift sorrel from the water. Heat the four cups of water, and when boiling add sorrel leaves and the bunch of sorrel stems. Cook over a slower flame for thirty minutes. Then lift out the bunch of stems and throw them away. Add salt and pepper and cook five minutes, then remove from fire. Beat an egg in a bowl, gradually add the soup and let cool. Then place on ice. Serve in individual bowls with a few heaping tablespoonfuls of thick sour cream piled in each one.

The tops of the beets may be cooked the same way, but the stems and leaves can be cooked together, as they are all tender.

Cold Tomato Soup

One pound of ripe tomatoes, four cups of water, two cups of sour cream, one onion, one teaspoon of lemon juice, one teaspoon of flour, one-eighth teaspoon of ginger, one teaspoon of salt.

Cook, onion, tomatoes and water for twenty-five minutes, then strain. Dissolve the flour in a little cold water, add the strained tomato juice and cook for a minute with the salt and ginger, remove from the fire and add the lemon juice. Set aside to cool, and serve, when chilled, with sour cream in each plate.

Many of the thoroughly ripened fruits make delicious fruit soups. They must always be thoroughly chilled, and this is done not by adding cracked ice at the end (which will spoil the flavor), but by preparing the soup early in the day, letting it cool off, then placing in the refrigerator to get really cold.

Fruit Soup

One pound of blackberries (or other fruit), one cup of water, sugar or lemon juice to taste, one cup of sweet or sour cream.

Cook the fruit and water slowly for about ten minutes, then pour through a fine sieve. Flavor with a little lemon juice if the soup is preferred sour or a few gratings of nutmeg or a little preserved ginger. Cool and chill. Serve either with sweet whipped cream, or iced, thick, sour cream.

Dancers! Avoid Perspiration Odor

Strong body odor is always present during exercise and excitement of dancing. You may not notice it but your partners do.

Don't risk giving offense. Use Kora Konia—the soothing deodorant. A remarkable new powder discovered by Mennen—producers of the finest shaving creams, talcums and baby powders. It neutralizes perspiration acids and prevents odor. Regular application keeps you free from odor all day and evening.

Kora Konia also absorbs excess perspiration; avoids unsightly moisture, thus preventing injury to garments. Soothes, heals raw, rubbed skin. Ends burning and itching.

Be free from perspiration odor all summer. Apply Kora Konia liberally and frequently. Best deodorant, too, for sanitary pads. Apply to feet to keep perspiration acids from injuring hose. At all druggists.—Adv.

LINA BASQUETTE has ivory-smooth skin

Movie Directors Say Lovely Skin Wins

HOLLYWOOD, Calif.—"Beauty skin is absolutely necessary for a girl's popularity and loveliness," says Howard Higgins, Pathé director, and agrees with leading movie directors. "I don't remember a girl's ever reaching screen stardom without a rarely lovely skin."

Lina Basquette, Pathé star, knows that there is no charm without lovely skin. She is one of the 442 important Hollywood actresses who keep their skin exquisite with Lux Toilet Soap. "Thus white, fragrant soap has all the charm of an imported French soap," she says. "And it leaves my skin beautifully smooth!"

Nine out of ten screen stars use this soap, and all the great film studios have made it the official soap for their dressing rooms.

GOVERNORS DISCUSS PROBLEM OF CRIME

Quest for Luxurious Living Chief Cause, Iowa Executive Says

Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt, was on the program for a speech on crime. He told International News Service before the session opened his talk would be extemporaneous and would deal with the cooperation governors could give each other in combatting crime. Asked if he would stress the importance of prohibition in its relation to crime, Governor Roosevelt said:

"No, I will not stress prohibition because I do not feel prohibition is the controlling factor in crime."

Asked what the controlling factor was, he replied: "Human nature."

Shapely Legs Often Ruined by VARICOSE VEINS

Simple Home Treatment Brings Amazing Results

Varicose Veins are veins which have become dilated and enlarged by undue pressure made upon them and are most frequently caused by tight garters, girdles, constipation, positions requiring long standing, childbirth, etc.

Anyone suffering with Varicose Veins should start and take immediate precaution because untreated veins have a tendency to grow worse and worse until finally they can only be relieved by an operation.

It's now an accepted fact that the best home treatment to banish Varicose Veins is Moone's Emerald Oil—a powerful penetrating and antiseptic oil which quickly stops the pain, wonderfully strengthens the legs and swiftly reduces most enlarged and swollen veins to normal.

Why let your leg beauty and attractiveness be ruined by ugly veins when a 2 ounce bottle of Emerald Oil at Brailler's Drug Store or any drug store swiftly reduces the worst and most long standing cases! A woman from Oregon writes: "I suffered with Varicose Veins for 36 years and finally I tried Emerald Oil. I must say it's everything you claim—I can't praise it enough and I'm so glad I read about it in the Oregon Journal" —Adv.

SELECTIONS from nine stage and screen musical shows make up the program by the Ingram Shavers to be broadcast over the WEAF network at 8 o'clock Wednesday night. A medley from Vincent Youman's newest musical comedy "Great Day" will open the program.

Other numbers representing the stage include a group of numbers from the "Little Show," one of season's current popular reviews, and other popular compositions from recent musical successes.

Two 3-Story Buildings Crash into Excavation

MONTGOMERY, Ala., July 16—Montgomery's main business block presented a yawning gap today as workmen continued to remove debris from the collapsed structures which yesterday housed two of the city's leading mercantile establishments.

All that remained of the shoe and department store that were destroyed when two three-story buildings tumbled into an adjoining excavation was a mass of wreckage. More than 50 employes and customers were congratulating themselves on their miraculous escape.

Property loss, including the store stocks was estimated at $200,000. The buildings started to crack a few minutes before they crumbled, thus warning those inside to flee. No one was hurt seriously.

By all the laws of that world, his shattered life was past remaking—as Jennifer's was not that no known laws ruled. Jennifer's was, for all that had happened, still her life to make, and her essays to that end must never be hampered. Tabor insisted, by knowledge that an older man, to whom she might perhaps think she was under some obligation, loved her. It was his part to be resigned to serve his love in secret.

The greater ease with which Jennifer was already beginning to use her gen was a fair omen, too. Tabor believed; bore out the promise she had made in that self-conscious and stumbling first communication, so argued command of a faculty rarely met in humankind, most rarely in women so young, the faculty of self-criticism.

One so ready to see and reform slack habits of speech, ever the most stubborn to deal with, was competent, it seemed reasonable to assume, to accomplish almost anything that she might aspire to.

Improvement in this respect was furthermore fairly rapid and constant. Once she had settled her shoulders into the yoke of routine, Jennifer seemed to be moved to write Tabor at least a few lines daily, saving these up to be dispatched in batches under one cover—consignments of gossip whose want of constraint betokened completest confidence in him. Tabor, indeed, in more human moments could have welcomed some sign that the girl was less unaware of him as a man whose interest in her was conceivably not altogether altruistic.

Her letters related, however, without the least apparent reservation, everything that happened to her which she imagined he might find interesting how her performances, gauged by her own standards, varied from night to night, what newspapers had to say about them, and what fellow members of the company thought of her acting as well as what they told her they thought of it, the various attitudes of these obliged her to adopt toward them collectively and individually and their attitudes toward one another; all woven into a rambling account of fortunes of "the road"— a cinematographic sort of life, it seemed, whose scenes flickered restlessly between mean dressing rooms, stages ill-managed and poorly equipped, irksome "accommodation" trains, and grubby hotels in second class cities scattered over half a dozen middle-western states—and illuminated with spirited little pen sketches, for the most part in lines of light malice, of the more aggressive among her associates.

Tabor was thus able before long to piece together a mosaic of impressions whose whole gave a tolerably fair picture of the conditions which that little band of quite everyday folk had to cope with in their scrambling for wages and preferment; a life whose endless discomforts and annoyances kept the lot of them alternately squabbling and doing one another small kindnesses, prosecuting grim private feuds 21 hours out of every 24 but "packing their hates in the wings" lest something happen on stage to mar the teamwork they owed the paying public, and at all times standing as one against the knaveries that house managers and hotelkeepers would practice on them, the pilferings of minor theater posts, and those common nuisances who, especially in small towns, fancying themselves gallants, hold every season an open season for actresses.

In this way made the spiritual familiar of Jennifer on her travels, Tabor learned how to worry through a night on two seats in a day-coach when the company was making a "sleeper jump" after a performance and the promised sleeping-car space was not forthcoming; why the average boarding house is preferable to a hotel, as a rule, if one is fortunate enough to be playing a week stand; what to do when your trunk forgets to get off with you at your station; and how to exist on wayside food—lunching on the stuff that railway station counters serve, slabs of half-baked bread with a wafer of nondescript meat between, synthetic pastries, and rings of sweetish dough fried in deep fat till soggy with it beneath their rough brown bark and utterly defiant of human digestive powers; making the best of "regular dinners" parceled out in a multitude of small tubs such as caged birds bathe in, and served by waitresses whose hair wants washing; and surrendering up the gay abandon of after-theater suppers in Night Owl lunch wagons, the mainstays of whose menus are corn'-beef hash (with or without one fried egg recumbent,) beans Boston-baked to the consistency of lead shot, and hot drinks of a sickly brown flavor that pass as coffee when served in mugs half an inch thick.

Love's Awakening

The Heart Story of a Woman's Lasting Affections

BY ADELE GARRISON

Noel Agrees to Pay Ardent Court to Princess Olina

I WAITED patiently for Noel Veritzen to regain his self-control. But my heart held a far *different emo*tion than patience—something, indeed, akin to fury against the boy's father to whom he just had chokingly referred. Patently Philip Veritzen had been bedeviling his son about his feeling for Mary, and the sensitive lad, caught in the toils of a distasteful betrothal, and seeing the girl of his heart entangled in a similar engagement, was goaded to desperation.

When he finally lifted his head from his hands and looked at me, I was shocked into a startled little exclamation. His ravaged face was drained of color and his eyes were dulled with pain.

"Noel! You are ill!" I exclaimed. "What can I——"

"It is nothing but a headache," he protested, "and it will soon pass. But what am I to do, Mrs. Graham? I thought my father would be satisfied when these engagements were announced, but he was in a rage last night after we left here. He said that no self-respecting girl, especially a royal princess, would stand for such lukewarm attentions, and he accused me of showing my feelings for Mary so openly that everybody could see them. He says that if Olina breaks the engagement, he will know that I am at fault, and that he will hold Mary and me responsible. You know what that means. I shall be practically penniless, and Mary——"

"Suppose you stop worrying about Mary right now," I said crisply, purposely keeping all sympathy out of my voice. "She is perfectly capable of taking care of herself. She will cure Prince Georges of his infatuation for her, and at the same time keep his friendship. It is your problem which we must consider and at once. I am surprised——"

I did not finish the sentence. It was not advisable to tell the boy that his father had promised to let me deal with him, especially as Philip Veritzen's promise had been reduced to zero value by his angry invective against his son.

"I am going to ask you to do a hard thing, Noel," I said, quickly. "We have spoken of the scheme before, but now is the time to put it concretely into action. Can you control your eyes, your face and your voice for the next few days, can you betray no hint of your feeling for Mary, and at the same time pay such devoted, apparently jealous attention to Princess Olina that she will have no opportunity to see or talk to anyone else except yourself?"

He looked at me blankly for a second, then his shadowed eyes lighted, and a little smile quirked the corners of his mouth.

"You want to make her sick of the very sight of me, I gather," he said.

"Exactly," I told him, smiling. "Especially do I want you to exhibit jealousy of Prince Georges, but make it clear that it is on Olina's account, not Mary's. It's going to be a hard task to convince your father that you are in earnest. You must not let your role slip for an instant. By the way, what did you tell him when he accused you of betraying your feeling for Mary?"

"I never have a chance to tell my father anything when he is in a rage," Noel said simply. "He says what he has to say, then goes to his own room."

"That was fortunate in this case," I said, "for it absolved you of the necessity of disclaiming your affection for Mary. Now I shall make it a point to see him today and, casting my scruples for truth into the good cause, I shall tell him I think he is mistaken about your feeling, and that in reality you are much in love with Olina. If you play your cards right, I do not believe he will question your devotion to her again."

"I will do anything you tell me," the boy replied fervently, "anything to get out of this tangle. But—Mary—will she understand?"

"I will see that Mary understands—fully—" I promised, and Noel squaring his shoulders and looking desperately determined, started for the door.

"You might call this comedy 'The Princess Pursued,'" he said with a smile which gave me as much astonishment as pleasure. But I felt easier about Noel from that minute.

I was not so easy about the other three. If I had approved the international matches and wished to further them, I would have been content, for Harry Underwood's irritated comment was absurdly apt:

"The place is getting to be a bally dove cote," he said. "You can't step without stumbling over a pair of billers and cooers."

I found myself distinctly worried. I knew Noel's attitude. I guessed Mary's, although so absorbed in Prince Georges did she appear, that I wondered if her girlish imagination was in thrall to a throne, and purposely I delayed telling her what lay behind Noel's apparently whirlwind wooing of Olina. But except for that one dismayed exclamation of surprise upon the night of the betrothal dinner, there had been no indication from either of our young royal guests that they were other than blissfully content with their lot. Was the little chap with the arrow stacking the cards against us?

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

FOURTH of July has went and there isn't any more holidays until Thanksgiving, and that will be a real holiday, because school will be going then. I laid a long time after I woke up this morning thinking about turkey and stuffing and telling Jubilee all about Thanksgiving eats till I got so hungry that I jumped out of bed and let him down by his rope and got into my britches and faded downstairs and swiped a piece of roast beef and two slices of bread and a pickle out of the pantry to sort of stay my stummick till breakfast. I guess I am the hungriest just before breakfast than I am any other time of day, except maybe before dinner and before supper.

Whilst I was milking the dummed brutes and the bunch was standing around we made it up that when we got the cows out to the pasture we would do a quick hike out to Big Creek and stay all day and go in swimming and find some hair-snakes, like are always in the footprints of cattle where the water stands and gets hot in the sunshine. But just when I had hopped up from the table and was reaching for my hat my mother told me to hurry back from the pasture and take care of Annabelle's Lee, because my mother had a big ironing to do and didn't want to be bothered. I had just got my mouth open to ast what was the matter with my aut taking care of her for a change but I saw my father looking at me kinda cold, and I shut my mouth without putting my foot in it, which was pretty good for a fella no older than I am.

When we had got to the pasture and had a swim and I said I had to go home and take care of Annabelle Lee, I waited to see if the bunch wouldn't say they would come and play in my yard instead of going to Big Creek, but Goop said they would go along and if I got a chance to sneak off for me to come out later. So me and Jubilee started down the big road all by ourselves. And when I got home the Lost Bag of Tripe's mother was there with his baby brother, and then Younlss and Feeble and Maggie come oozing in, and the Lost Bag of Tripe's brother was laying on his back on the floor kicking up his heels and Annabelle Lee was setting on the floor by his head, and Feeble got the stocking darner which is a round piece of wood like a big egg with a handle on it, and he tried to take it away from Annabelle Lee, and she hauled off with it and busted him on the nose so hard with it that his feet flew up and his snoot started to bleed and he hollered so loud it shook the house, and I got blamed for that. My mother had to scold someone, and Annabelle Lee wasn't old enough so I got it. It was Feeble's fault, but she didn't look sorry. Darn a girl.

When we can travel 400 miles an hour, why should we?

A justice of the peace Myron J. Pentz dismissed charges against Strong and his associates, declaring that the contribution system was legal in Ohio. Although unable to appeal the decision the sheriff said it would taken an opinion from a higher court to stop him.

Strong conferred with his lawyers after which he issued a statement to the effect that no attempt would be made today to reopen. Thistledown track. He refused to say whether it might be reopened later.

Regardless of the justice's decision favoring the track owners observers said it would be almost impossible to reopen. Thistledown track now because most of the horse owners have sent their runners to other eastern tracks being unable to bear the financial burden of keeping their horses idle until legal barriers were removed.

Finances of Young Chinese Government Make War Unlikely, Writer Asserts

Correspondent Who Spent Eight Years at Seat of Controversy with Russia Does Not Take Serious View of Threatened Armed Clash

Editor's Note—Mr. Montee who writes the following article explaining the present situation at Harbin, the seat of the present Russo-Chinese crisis, spent eight years in the Far East as a newspaper correspondent a part of which time he was stationed at Harbin.

By H. C. MONTEE

Director of Foreign Service International News Service

NEW YORK, July 1.—The threat of actual war in the Far East as a result of the Chinese authorities of Manchuria having deposed and defied the governor officials of the Chinese eastern railway at Harbin and the Soviet Government having ultimatum to the Nanking (Chinese National) government is more apparent than real in the opinion of the foundation in the ever changing Chinese situation.

Stated briefly the finances of the young and struggling Chinese nationalist government are such as to make impossible the conduct of a serious war with a foreign country.

Relations with Japan

The Chinese government cannot it is believed, count on active or financial support from Japan in the present dispute for the following reason.

If the Chinese seizure of the Chinese Eastern railway were approved or sanctioned by the powers especially Japan the Japanese-controlled South Manchurian railway running from Changchun, Manchuria to Korea might be similarly threatened at some time in the future.

Although Japanese interests and investments in Manchuria are huge she also has very important investments and concessions in the maritime provinces in Siberia which would be threaten the action which Japan might take to support China in an armed conflict with Russia.

Japan now enjoys a very profitable export trade with eastern Siberia which would be disrupted by any outbreak of hostilities between Japan and Soviet Russia.

Purpose of Aid

Although successive Japanese governments for years past financial assistance to Marshal Chang Tso Lin former military governor of Manchuria this aid was for the purpose of enabling Chang to maintain peace in Manchuria while all other parts of China were torn with civil strife rather than to further any aggression or conflict with soviet Russia. Since 1919 when the last Japanese troops were withdrawn from Siberia following the allied intervention for the purpose of repatriating the Czech Slavik troops from Russia Japan has consistently followed a conciliatory policy toward soviet Russia for the purpose of cultivating her export trade with that country.

Observers here do not anticipate that the Nanking government will support the arbitrary action of the Harbin officials to the point of embroiling the two governments in armed conflict. Harbin filled with white Russian refugees thousands of them former members of the Kolchak, Denikine or Semianoff armies which fought against the soviets during the Russian counter revolution has long been a storm spot to both the Chinese and the Russian governments.

Maintain Organization

There also from vengeance of the Soviet regime the refugees have maintained their old organizations fairly well intact hoping always for an opportunity to join a movement for the overthrow of the soviet regime and a return of monarchial government in Russia. At the same time these bodies of former troops have caused endless friction with the Chinese authorities by their disregard of Chinese laws.

Although both countries may mobilize troops along the border and close the frontier to traffic this will not necessarily result in war as the operation of the Chinese Eastern railway is not absolutely essential to overt Russian as Moscow can communicate with the maritime provinces via the northern all Russian branch of the trans Siberian railway.

Observers here believe that Moscow would be reluctant to declare war upon China as a last resort fearing the reaction in other world capitals.

LAST NIGHT'S RESULTS
Forest Lawn 7, Asbury 6.
Presbyterians 11, Lee Street 6
Lutherans 10, Reformed 9.
Christians 28, U. B. 15.

BY BOB ELLIOTT

DO we have upsets? The answer to that one is the same as to "do fish like the water." In the second church league yesterday Lee Street and Asbury, who were expected to fight it out for the loop tops, both were given unexpected defeats and as a result Central Christians and Lutherans stepped back into the race again.

The last two named are trailing Asbury by a single game while needless to say the Lee Street nine is a half game behind the Asburyites in second place. Forest Lawn by virtue of a victory over Asbury moved into fifth place with five won and the same number lost.

Presbyterians, resting in seventh place, provided the upset of upsets when they socked Charlie Burke's left handed offerings all over the lot to hand Lee Street an 11-to-6 walloping. It was artistic in every way with each of the Presby players contributing to the troubles of poor Mr Burke and his cohorts. The losers got to Red Walker for only seven hits which don't win many ball games in this league.

Early Start

The winners cinched the game in the second and third innings when they drove out 10 hits which they made for nine runs. Every player on the winning team scored in one of these two innings with the exception of Caldwell.

Forest Lawn, after having a four-game winning streak broken by the Lee Street nine two weeks ago started right up with another one and nosed Asbury, 7 to 6 thanks to a two run rally in the sixth frame. The losers hit Lefty Peadon hard enough collecting nine bingles while the winners were getting but eight off Johnny Cook but unfortunately they don't count the result by hits. Peadon whiffed eight which helped him in no small degree.

Reformed forfeited to the Luther*ans after the latter had scored eight* times in the first inning but the game was finally completed with the Reformed on the short end of a 10-to-9 count.

A Game?

Christians and United Brethren staged some kind of a circus with the former finishing ahead, 28 to 15 as far as we could gather from the score book.

Giants Dropping Out of Race For National League Pennant

PIRATES AND WINDY CITY TEAM KEEP UP RUSH THROUGH EAST

Gotham Nine Losing All Its Pep as McGraw Rages, Walsh Says

BY DAVIS J. WALSH

NEW YORK, July 16 — Maybe the Pittsburgh Pirates still think the Giants have a chance. Maybe the Chicago Cubs aren't willing to declare the local outfit out of the pennant fight yet. And maybe neither of them will find this necessary. The Giants may have declared themselves out of it already. Anyhow, there is a more than a tentative suspicion around these parts that the Giants have curled up on John McGraw like an old love letter.

Pirates Win Again

Apparently the Pirates' rush through the east—they won their eighth straight in Boston yesterday—and the consistent winning of the Cubs in this section have taken all the fight out of John's ball club. In spite of a long stay at home, they are 6 1-2 games out of the lead today and this depressing circumstance has had its effect in the dugout. Here, a brooding silence prevades. The boys have nothing to say and they spend the afternoon saying R. Hogan chased a foul in amongst them the other day and nobody moved. They probably were thinking about something important. Anyhow they hadn't seen him coming. The incident was typical of an attitude the Giants seem to have assumed since last Wednesday when they failed to win the opening game of a double header with the Cubs.

This sounds like a strange outfit for a bloke like McGraw to be handling. John is supposed to be a slave driver whose every word is the lash of a whip that makes the hired men cringe and cower but apparently they are not cringing in good form these days. Even a man's most violent oratory is liable to seem pointless if he gets the impression that nobody is listening.

Maybe It Does

Probably the main trouble with the club is that it finds itself in third place and has come to suspect that this is where it belongs. Certainly indications are strongly against an improvement in their situation. For one thing, they have lost 10 games more than the Pirates and there is one bet you always can make with an open mind and a clear conscience, namely, games that are lost, stay lost. A club can get well out in front in victories and you still have a chance. But when it tops you badly in de*feats, you are licked.*

Another adverse indication is the fact that the Giants have played seven double headers in the last three weeks and have broken even in six of them. It is remarkable how fast one can get oneself nowhere doing business like that. Meantime, the club they expected to run down while the eastern campaign was on, to wit, the Pirates, has won three straight in Brooklyn, four straight in Philadelphia, and the opening game in Boston yesterday. They have won 13 of the last 15 games while the Giants have been doddering along with eight victories and five defeats. They also have lost ground to the Cubs, so that if they feel downcast today, they have come by the sentiment honestly.

Dale
ALEXANDER
WILL HE BE A "RIGHT HANDED BABE RUTH"?
HAS STAKED OUT A PERMANENT CLAIM ON THE FIRST CORNER—
ALEXANDER'S TERRITORY

BY QUIN HALL

IF YOU happen to be in Detroit, try to tell one of those Tiger fans they have a big gap at the first corner which ought to be plugged up. After you get out of the hospital, you'll begin to realize that you had a bum idea of kidding the Speed Town rooter.

This year, Detroit is taking its baseball seriously. They feel that in Rocky Harris they have one of the smartest managers in the game (which will probably call forth another argument) and that, if the Tigers get their share of the breaks, they will finish well up in the final league standings.

And, arguing about that gap at the first corner will get you nowhere except into trouble. David Dale Alexander is tending to the territory adjacent to first base and, when we say tending, we mean just that. Dale Dale is some first sacker.

Dale (dropping the David, as Alexander seems to have done) is the fellow who was acquired from the Toronto Maple Leafs last winter along with pitcher John Pendlebomme. Going on thirty years of age, six foot three, and tipping the weight at 215, he approached his job in the majors by easy stages. Born in Greenville, Tenn., Dale attended school there and later went to Milligan College at Johnson City, Tenn., where he played end on the football team and gathered some fame as punter. He quit college in 1924, after two years of learning, to join the Greenville club in Appalachian League where he hit the onion mark of .342. Charlotte, in the South Atlantic League, paid $500 for him in 1925 and there he batted .331. He stuck with Charlotte in 1926 and was purchased by Toronto for $5,000 for the 1927 season. The first year with the Maple Leafs, he batted .338 and last year he nicked the leather for .382.

So far this summer, Alexander of Detroit, has been doing a great job at the plate and afield. Close observers claim that he is a "right-handed Babe Ruth." He has been tickling opposing twirlers for fourply wallops; but the fact that he is plenty dangerous every time he steps up to the platter is sufficient to interest the Tiger fans.

And how they are interested! He looks like their best bet in years.

RUTH SOCKS HOMER TO GIVE YANKS EDGE OVER TIGERS, 7 TO 6

Circuit Clout Comes In Ninth Off Carroll; Indians Win and Lose

BY LES CONKLIN

NEW YORK, July 16—The boys who were all for dethroning Babe Ruth as home run king last month are eating considerable crow tod*ay, for present indications* are that the master mauler again will be leading the circuit clouters of both leagues when the final totals are posted.

After being laid up and forced to swallow nasty medicine for the first three weeks of June, Ruth today has only two homers less than Buster Gehrig, the American league leader. He has delivered 10 four baggers in the past four weeks and probably would be leading the parade by a comfortable margin today if growing pains had not forced him to take a siesta.

They Count

The Babe's clouts have been particularly valuable to the Yankees because of their timeliness. His No 20, contributed in the ninth inning of the game with Detroit yesterday, gave the champions a dramatic 7-to-6 victory. The ball struck the center field wall and the portly slugger had to sprint all the way around the paths for the first time this season.

New York cut the Athletics' lead to eight games, as the Macks lost the first game of a double bill to Cleveland, 8 to 5, with the rookie Wes Ferrell opposing them. George Earnshaw sealed the Indians in the nightcap, 4 to 0.

If Ruth does lose his home run diadem his successor may be Chuck Klein, the Phillie phenom who smacked his 24th, 25th and 26th homers yesterday and became one up on Mel Ott of the Giants in the National league home run derby. Despite Klein's homeric feats, the Phils dropped both ends of a double header to the Cubs, 9 to 6 and 7 to 6.

Cubs Closing In

The Cubs advanced to within 2 1-2 games of the Pirates, who eked out a 5-to-4 decision over the Braves when the once peerless George Sisler in gloriously muffed a pop fly in the eleventh inning.

Ray Kolp, Cincinnati hurler who recently dropped a disputed decision to Hack Wilson, was outpointed by Lefty Clark of Brooklyn, 4 to 2. Clark yielded only four hits.

Bunching hits in the third and fifth frames, the Giants downed the Cardinals, 7 to 2. Scott and Sherdel pitched.

The St. Louis Browns massacred the Red Sox, 10 to 3 and young Ed Walsh of the White Sox beat Washington, 4 to 2.

Braddock Resting Easily As Champ Keeps Working

BY SID MERCER

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., July 16—James J. Braddock is fit and ready but Tommy Loughran is still struggling with his weight problem as challenger and champion wind up training for their light heavyweight tilt Thursday night at Yankee Stadium, New York. Braddock, far enough under the weight to justify a period of restful inactivity for the next two days, tossed his 14 ounce sparring gloves aside late yesterday and will not put on leather again until Thursday night.

If ever a challenger looked the part of a man of destiny, Braddock is that picture today. His strong, lithe body with its symetrical lines, does not belie the crushing power in his fists but when he goes into action he explodes, shattering punches as his gray eyes narrow with grim determination. Braddock is just as sure that he is going to knock out Loughran and perhaps accomplish that feat with one blow as he is of collecting his end of the purse.

Working Hard

Meanwhile, Loughran is grinding away wearily at Hoosick Falls, harassed by the necessity of whittling down and keeping off weight right up to the moment that he greets Braddock at the scales. The champion cant' help betraying the anxiety he feels over how this heroic reduction process will affect his speed and stamina.

The challenger weighed only 171¼ after losing about 20 ounces in his program workout yesterday. At that poundage he was strong and fit and hammered away at four sparring partners without wheezing.

Loughran is reported to still be in the sweat box, working under heavy wraps and faced with the necessity of drying out to make the 175 pound mark. The champion will have to do some limbering up tomorrow and Thursday. Braddock does only road work today.

LAST NIGHT'S FIGHTS

At Grand Rapids, Mich.—George Godfrey, Philadelphia negro heavyweight, knocked out Ralph Smith, of San Francisco (2).

At Boston—Ernie Schaaf, Boston heavyweight, knocked out Jack Gagnon, also of Boston (6).

At New York—Sammy Dorfman, New York junior lightweight, stopped Petey Mack, Jersey City (5).

At Philadelphia — Jack Gross, Salem, N. J., heavyweight, won decision over Murray Gitlitz, of New Haven, Conn. (6).

Eddie Dempsey, Philadelphia, scored technical knockout over Battling Willard, of Lancaster, Pa (3).

Joey Hadnehl, of Conshohocken, Pa., drew with Al Gordon, Philadelphia lightweight (6).

At Newark, N. J.—Cowboy Willis, of Tacoma, Wash., stopped Slim Hollinger, Newark heavyweight (1).

At Albany, N. Y.—Frankie Lafay, of Troy, N. Y., stopped Jimmy Borde, French lightweight (7).

At Toronto—Steve Rocco, Canadian flyweight champion, outpointed Phil Tobias, New York (10).

RICE NOSED OUT IN BATTLE OF HURLERS WHEN SUPPORT FAILS

Fido Robbins Scores Only Run for Independents in Eighth Frame

AFTER holding the hard hitting Mansfield All Stars from Johnny Park to three hits and no runs in the first seven frames, Roy Rice, pitching for the Marion Independents slipped up a bit and the All Stars eased across two runs which were sufficient to take the game, 2 to 1. Fido Robbins scored in the eighth inning for the locals' only run.

However Rice was in no way to blame for the defeat as his mates failed miserably in the eighth. Shaffer started the scoring when he opened the inning by grounding to Bacon and taking second when "Rake" threw the ball away. He scored a moment later when Hummel drove a long triple to left center. Something slipped up on the play which never should have taken place. R. Hunt drove in Hummel with the winning run. Robbins scored for Marion when he tripled to deep center.

mission yesterday cited officials of the Nevin bus lines, operating between Pittsburgh and Detroit, to appear before the commission here July 22 and show cause why this concern should not comply with Ohio laws and the rules and regulations of the commission.

The accident occurred 7 1-2 miles south of Youngstown, on the Boardman-Youngstown rd., when a bus, containing 27 passengers and two drivers, left the road and overturned, due to locked wheels. The bus was enroute to Detroit from Pittsburgh.

The commission's action today followed submission of a report by H. M. Evans, chief inspector of the commission's railroad department. Evans declared the "responsible driver" had turned the bus over to John A. Irvine, who was driving when the accident occurred. Irvine, according to Evans, was not qualified to operate the bus. Evans said the driver was "no judge of speed", had no Ohio license and was otherwise inefficient. The slippery condition of the highway, he said, called for an expert driver.

Evans reported that buses operate irregularly, that buses are from one to eight hours late, that drivers wait until buses are loaded, that drivers have no Ohio licenses, and that they are required to drive 330 miles daily.

NEW BRITISH PLANE IS "FLYING BULLET"

Craft Added to Royal Air Force Regarded as Perfect for Warfare

LONDON, July 16—Great Britain has added to the Royal Air force what is believed to be the world's perfect fighting airplane.

Details concerning this machine, which are revealed by the air ministry for the first time, show that it is virtually a "flying bullet."

Constructed entirely of steel, the machine is a single seater, built for the home defence force. Its main purpose is to bring down invading enemy bombers before they have an opportunity to get over London or other strategical points.

For two years British aeronautical experts have worked on this plane and now they have achieved success in the all essential point—speed.

The machine is able to take off within a minute and climb to a height of nearly four miles in 13:1-4 minutes. At that height it can maintain a speed of 185 miles an hour.

It is fitted with a super-charger and specially geared Jaguer motor developing 400-horsepower.

NEW DORMITORY

State to Provide Housing Facilities for 300 Reformatory Prisoners

COLUMBUS, July 16—Announcement that the state control board granted the request of Welfare Director H. H. Griswold for the expenditure of $50,000 in erecting a dormitory to house 300 male prisoners from the Mansfield state reformatory at the Grafton state farm, Lorain county, was made today.

Griswold is to submit plans and specifications of the proposed dormatory to the board for its approval Griswold explaied that the dormitory is a step in the gradual development of the Grafton farm as a state institution designed to relieve congestion at the Mansfield reformatory.

The 300 men are expected to raise sufficient crops on the Grafton farm to supply both the Mansfield reformatory and the Cleveland State hospital.

Two Girls Unperturbed as Man Leaps into River

WASHINGTON, July 16—Police say the two girls Russel H. Tracey was said to be motoring with during the wee hours today were surely "hard-hearted Hannahs."

They said Tracey got out of an automobile, crawled upon the ledge of a bridge spanning the Potomac and leaped into the water. The machine containing the girls continued on, they said.

Tracey struck shallow water and was pulled ashore by police. He didn't want to be rescued though. They said he wanted to die because he "quarreled with a girl."

ADOPT BUDGET AT TRUSTEE MEETING

Auburn Township Authorities Pass on Funds To Care for Year's Business

TIRO, July 16—Auburn township trustees held a special meeting at their office in Tiro, Saturday evening for the purpose of reading the annual budget to all interested tax payers. The budget was adopted, calling for approximately $11,000, for all purposes, including money required to redeem serial bonds and interest on same, falling due next year; general fund purposes and road purposes. General fund requirements now include salaries for trustees and clerk, cemetery purposes, funds to meet obligations on account of the poor and needy, which come under the Township jurisdiction, and funds for the upkeep and maintenance of the township voting house, and other minor items.

The bond retirement requirements will be the lightest in many years, as only $2,625 will be needed for that fund, as compared with about $5,000 last year. The only issue of bonds outstanding after Jan. 1, 1930, will be those issued by authority of vote of the people in November, 1913, and issued June 1, 1914.

The trustees at the meeting, Saturday night also paid $2,376.24 to the county treasurer for the township's share of the construction of the mile-and-a-half section of Auburn Center Road No. 71. The Township had agreed to pay 60 per cent of the cost of building that section of road which extends westward from Auburn Center to the Township hall. A check was also issued to the County Treasurer for $5.39 for taxes on township property.

TELLS LAKE STATES TO GUARD INTERESTS

Ohio Official Returns from Conference on Chicago Water Case

COLUMBUS, July 16—That the lake states "must be on guard" in connection with the Chicago water level case "against anything like the delay and constant changing of plans that we have seen in war debt settlements," is the declaration which was made today by Attorney General Gilbert Bettman.

The attorney general returned today from conferences held at Chicago by attorneys general of the Lake states and counsel and trustees of the Chicago sanitary district. These conferences dealt with the exchange of abstract testimony of experts on the steps Chicago can take to safeguard the health of its 3,500,000 residents without diverting water from Lake Michigan to dilute its sewage. This testimony will be submitted to Attorney Charles Evans Hughes, New York, as special master appointed by the U. S. supreme court, to determine the form of the decree which the court should issue to stop Chicago's further diversion of water, it was stated.

"Chicago will have to provide, by financing and construction of adequate treatment plants, for its sewage without diverting the lake water," said Bettman. "Ohio intends to be on guard against any indirect attempt by Chicago to continue diversion under cover of a Great Lakes-Mississippi river waterway."

Bettman voiced the opinion that "congress should not, even if it could, divert water from the Great Lakes watershed to the Mississippi river watershed even for navigation purposes in that river." He expressed the belief that "even congress has no power to make such a diversion at Chicago to the Mississippi watershed as would adversely affect shipping interests and commerce on the Great Lakes."

POLISH FLIER'S BODY TAKEN FROM ISLAND

Is Exhumed from Temporary Grave and Removed to Horta

HORTA, Azores, July 16 — The body of the Polish flier Major Ludwig Idzikowski, who was killed in the crash of the transatlantic plane Marshal Pilsudski on Saturday night, and which was exhumed after being buried on Graciosa island, arrived here today aboard the Polish training ship Iskra.

Upon the same ship is Major Kazimir Kubala, flying companion of Idzikowski, who was badly injured in the disaster and was still so weak he could not converse with any one.

Idzikowski's body rested in a coffin on the deck of the Iskra with sailors mounting guard. The coffin was covered with Polish, Portuguese and French flags.

Officers of the Iskra said that Kubala's face was badly mutilated and that he was almost blind. He was suffering from severe cuts. Previous to the forced landing on Graciosa the backfiring fumes of the motor overcame Kubala, who remembers nothing of what happened just before the plane crashed upon the ground. He thought, however, that the land he saw before he lost consciousness was Fayal.

It is not known if Kubala will be taken from the ship to a Horta hospital or continue on board under treatment by the ship's surgeon.

TIRO BOARD NAMES AG INSTRUCTOR

School Will Open First Monday in September

TIRO, July 16—C. H. Hoffman has been employed by the board of education, here, as the vocational agricultural instructor for the ensuing school year commencing Aug. 1, and for a period of 11 months, according to a contract submitted to him Monday. Mr. Hoffman will receive $2,000 for the term of 11 months. Farm shop work will be offered in his department in connection with the teaching of vocational agriculture under the Smith-Hughes provisions, full time to be devoted to the two departments. Under this plan the state will pay one-half of Mr. Hoffman's salary.

The school board decided to open the local schools the first Monday in September, for a nine-months term.

The clerk was instructed to request an "Advance Draft" of funds from the County Auditor for the purpose of meeting bonds and interest obligations falling due, Aug. 1. Other business taken care of by the board was the adoption of the annual budget for 1930. The budget calls for approximately $35,000 to meet both general fund and bonds-interest expenditures. About $10,000 will be required for the redemption of serial bonds and payment of interest charges, and the balance, $25,000 is for the general fund consisting of salaries of instructors, $15,000; salaries of drivers of vehicles for hauling children, supplies and equipment for motor vehicles and wagons and new vehicles $5,000, and the balance for other services and labor.

In 1931, the requirements for the bond-interest fund will be materially reduced, it was pointed out by W. W. Davis, who arranged the budget for next year.

Superintendent H. L. Shibler, who will assume his duties Aug. 1, presented a curriculum or course of study under the 6-6 plan, for the ensuing year, which had been approved by the state department of education. The local board, by resolution, adopted this plan and course of study.

County commissioners have refused to comment on the proposal

Spare the Moth- Spoil the Fabric!

Moths starve to death rather than eat a garment that is treated with Hoover Konate. They won't make a meal of your valuable furs, clothing, rugs and furnishings.

HOOVER KONATE
the 5-year moth-proofing compound

is absolutely ruthless in its action It kills by contact all forms of moth life in the article sprayed And it makes the fabric so unappetizing to the usually daunt less moth appetite that all the moth worms quietly die rather than nibble a single mouthful

For five years at least this protection lasts—how much longer no one yet knows—in spite of brushing, steaming, vacuum cleaning, wetting or spilled food. Only dry cleaning will remove the moth proofness of a Hoover Konated rug or drapery, chair or garment Harmless, invisible, in odorous it gives a moth protection hitherto unobtainable. LETT BEAUTY PARLOR OF MARION consulted regularly by its smart clientele regarding complexion care

"A lather made with Palmolive Soap, massaged gently into the skin, will not only stimulate the complexion...but the emollient effect of palm and olive oils have the most beneficial effect."
D. W. LETT
BEAUTY SPECIALIST, 136 E CHURCH ST.

IT is strikingly significant that the leading beauty authorities of Europe and America agree on one basic beauty rule, a rule for keeping complexions radiantly lovely They call it foundation cleansing

Not only in this city but in every important beauty center of America and every capital of Europe, today, the leading authorities advise a simple home treatment to keep skin beautiful It is a treatment involving the twice a day use of Palmolive Soap and water

"Foundation cleansing"

'Foundation cleansing,' as advised by the great experts, is simply the daily elimination of pore clogging dirt and dust, of rouge and make up And this is done most effectively, they find, by the bland, creamy lather of Palmolive Soap.

This internationally-used complexion soap, blended of oils of olive and palm, rids the skin of secretions—provides a basis upon which individual beauty treatments are found to be most successful

In Paris, Mme Cavalieri, after much study, adopted Palmolive for her clients' use as a home treatment So, too, did Vincent and Massé—other long established leaders. In Vienna, Pessl decided upon Palmolive In Berlin, Mme Bock—in London, Bertha Jacobson

Independently, the great experts of Europe have discovered for themselves the amazing effectiveness of this olive and palm oil complexion soap

Pessl, of Vienna, represents a house famous for its beauty care during the past 100 years. He advises his Royal and aristocratic patrons to use Palmolive

The Palmolive daily massage

Here is the treatment recommended by beauty authorities massage a smooth lather of Palmolive Soap and warm water into the skin with both hands Rinse first with warm water, then with cold, until all impurities are washed away That's all! Yet this simple treatment is an important reason for the increasing number of lovely complexions all over the world.

Consult your own beauty expert Follow her advice and this very day begin "foundation cleansing" with Palmolive Soap. A clear, radiant complexion will be your reward.

Beauty culture has become an exacting profession today The American woman relies on her beauty specialist not only for treatment but also for advice And the average beauty specialist today has studied skin texture and the connection between health and beauty, between cleanliness and beauty

The endorsement above, of one of the city's greatest experts, is in utter agreement with the advice on care of the complexion offered by Madame Jacobson of London, Institut de Beauté of Paris, and leading beauty experts of Berlin, Vienna, Geneva—twice-a-day cleansing with Palmolive Soap.
